REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

GOVERNOR,
JAMES A. BEAVER, of Centre county.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
W. T. DAVIES, of Bradford county.

JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT,
WILLIAM HENRY RAWLE, of Phila.

SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS,
JOHN M. GREER, of Butler county.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

WADE HAMPTON is said to be anxious to return to private life. The country is willing.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM is being congratulated over the discharge of its small-pox patient.

ONE of the momentous questions hereabouts is, where will James Schofield stand in the coming contest? Until this point is settled the campaign will be shrouded in uncertainty.

GENERAL BEAVER'S cheerful remarks at Harrisburg nearly took the breath away from the Independents. They begin to suspect that the General isn't paying much attention to the Stewart crowd.

THE Wilmington (N. C.) Star remarks: "The Southern Democrats are not fools." Ish dot so? We are glad to hear it. We had been led to believe from the utterances of many of them that they were.

THE Philadelphia Times seems to be under the impression that the State College is running for Governor instead of Gen. Beaver. It is hard to see how a paper like the Times can get so fearfully muddled.

JAMES G. BLAINE keeps his place in the ranks by refusing to become a candidate for Congress in Maine. No other Republican soldier has done more in the past to secure the success of the party or will in the future.

As politics seem to be getting a little dull in the Quaker City we suggest that the papers down there give us another chapter of that stirring serial entitled "The Gas Trust." These long intermissions make it a little difficult to follow the plat.

GUITEAU says Colonel Corkhill will get to the end of his rope before long. We don't know how it is with Corkhill, but Guiteau will undoubtedly reach the limit of his about the 30th of this month, and find a tight-fitting collar embroidered on the end of it.

THE Wisconsin Greenbackers claim that they will make an active fight in this year's campaign. They have engaged F. M. Fogg, of Maine, to visit every county and organize clubs and hold meetings. The chief difficulty in the way of an energetic canvass is the want of funds, and to remedy this an urgent call is made for contributions.

Too much bossism, we admit, is objectionable and bad for the party, but when called upon to choose between that and Democratic ascendency, we'll take the former, especially when there is so much at stake as in the impending campaign in this state. If bossism is offensive, Democracy is doubly so.

THE New York Sun thinks Harvard college is in disgrace because a portrait of Ex-President Hayes is allowed to hang in the institution beside the portraits of other presidents of the country. The Sun has been cramming its readers with this sort of stuff for the past six years. Evidently its editor delights to pose before the country as an ass, and if his readers can stand it we suppose the country can.

The Tariff Commission.

If the President has made haste slowly in creating the Commission to revise the tariff, the excellence of his work is his sufficient justification. It was not expected that the personnel of the Commission would give universal satisfaction. That would have been beyond the utmost of human wisdom to achieve. But so far the criticisms indulged with reference to the Commission as constituted arise out of a grave misapprehension of the reasons for creating a Commission at all, as well as out of a mistake touching the object of revision. If there were any doubt of the policy favored by the people of the United States in respect to tariff legislation, some of the criticisms and complaints submitted would at least have an excuse. But the object of the Commission is not the framing of a policy, but simply and only to collect data for the perfecting of a policy already adopted and sanctioned by the people.

The protection of American industry, by all just and effectual aids, is a part of the creed of the American people. Two years ago they went to the polls and set the seal of their condemnation upon the proposition submitted at Cincinnati, by the Democrats, to frame a tariff for revenue only. That was not so very long ago that men of intelligence should now assume that the protective policy of the Republican party is an unsettled question. If it was not an unsettled question then, it simply is not an unsettled question now. The time when the free trade theories and sophisms of the few schoolmen we have among us could be advocated before the people, with any reasonable hope of success, long ago passed away. But nobody ever pretended that the tariff as it stands was not defective, and susceptible of considerable improvement. The tariff can never become an immutable thing, but must be adapted to the conditions of the country, changing in detail as those conditions change, and in all respects conforming to the law of all national growth.

We do not understand that the Commission intends to discuss the abstract question of protection, or free trade. And we assume that men whose relations to the business of the country are real and practical ought to be the best selection that can be made.

The duty of the Commission will not be so difficult as laborious. It will not be difficult, because it has not to decide anything relating to policy so far as the main question is concerned. That is already decided. It will be a duty involving much labor and painstaking, because the time is limited as to performance, and because the data cannot be collected from books in the quietude of the library. The data must be obtained at the sources of industrial energy. Men actively engaged in production will have to be examined, and the resources of every important branch of industry will have to be gauged as perfectly as the time will allow. It is to be a quest in search of the equities pertaining to a vast and various series of industries. The interdependence of these multiform enterprises is acknowledged. Nobody denies that they are parts of a whole which constitutes the sum of national greatness. Hence there is no field for doctrinaires on such a Commission. It is not to be an arena for disputation. It is not to be a school for the elaboration of the abstract. It is to be an inquiry into the needs and demands of the domain of energy devoted to the development of national resources. The inquiry will relate strictly to the concrete. It is not even necessary that a single professor of political economy shall be found on such a Commission.—Philadelphia North American.

OREGON tallies one for the Republican side of the Senate. With Illinois to hear from, the future is tolerably secure in this direction.

Grow and Blaine.

Below we give the letter of Hon. James G. Blaine refusing to run for Congressman-at-Large in Maine. We need a Blaine to run for that office in this State and we have his counterpart in Galusha A. Grow, who like Blaine is a statesman of large experience. A congressman-at-large is only to be elected for two years and the man selected should be one who has had experience in congress, who has a national reputation, who has made a record that is popular with the people and who has been a friend of labor. Such a man is Grow—a man who belongs to no county or section, but is the pride of the whole state. A better man could not be chosen, and we hope if he is called he will see it to be in the line of duty to accept.

BLAINE REFUSES TO RUN FOR CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 5.—The Kennebec Journal will publish the following tomorrow morning:

"A very large number of prominent and influential Republicans in every county in the State, aggregating several thousand in all, united in addressing to Mr. Blaine the following invitation, dated May 18, 1882:

"The Hon. G. James Blaine: The undersigned, Republicans of the State of Maine, fully recognizing the local and National importance of the coming campaign in our State, and believing that nothing would add so much to the assurance of our party success as the prestige of your name upon the Republican ticket, respectfully and urgently request that you will consent to be nominated for Congressman-at-large, and give us the advantage of your candidacy and personal popularity in the work of redeeming the State.

MR. BLAINE HAS JUST REPLIED AS FOLLOWS,

"WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3.—The Hon. Anson P. Morrill, the Hon. Abner Coburn, the Hon. Neal Dow, the Hon. Samuel E. Spring, the Hon. Isaiah H. Drummond, Gen. Francis Fessenden, Gen. Selden Connor, the Hon. Daniel F. Davis, and Francis Cobb, Esq.,—GENTLEMAN. Your very kind letter urging me to become a candidate for Representative in Congress has been supplemented by similiar expressions from a large number of the best and truest Republicans of Maine. A request so general, so cordial, so unprecedented, has caused me to weigh the question seriously in all its bearings, to measure my obligation, and to ascertain my duty. After the fullest reflection I feel constrained to withold the use of my name For twenty-three years I was continuously in the public service, and I left in consequence of a tragedy that has involved deep changes in the policy of the Government. Since then I have been attending to long-neglected private afiairs, and from which I cannot at this time turn aside except with injustice to those who have even a stronger claim upon me than the great constituency which in these years has honored me with earnest support and with unwavering confidence. If I could persuade myself that my candidacy was a necessity, I would subordinate all personal considerations and at once comply with your desire, but I cannot flatter myself that this is the case. The convention will not fail to present a list of candidates for Congress that will command the united and hearty support of our political friends. Moreover, in every town the zeal and energy of the party will be quickened by the importance of choosing a Legislature that will re-elect Mr. Frye, and thus preserve our Republican strength in the United States Senate which has been for twenty-eight years unbroken. Towards these results, I shall cheerfully contribute my full share of labor, and not with less effect, I hope, because I shall speak as a private citizen interested only in maintaining the ascendency of sound Republican principles. Through you I beg to return my thanks to every gentleman in the State who has honored me with so signal an expression of friendship and confidence. I esteem that expression far beyond the position to which you proposed to elect me. I am, gentlemen, very truly yours,

JAMES G. BLAINE.

JUDGING from the daring exploit of the highwayman who the other day walked into a bank in Brookville, Kansas, and having filled his pockets coolly drove away, the mantle of the late Mr. James has fallen upon a worthy successor. It was by robbing banks in this simple straightforward manner that the original Mr. James made his reputation.

ALTHOUGH there were many so-called Independents in Centre county last year such a thing is not thought of now—all because of General Beaver's popularity at home.

General Beaver's Canvass.

The Elmira Advertiser, in an article upon the situation in Pennsylvania, observes: "Without waiting for the Democratic ticket and platform, which will come with the convention of the 28th instant, General Beaver is actively at work on the skirmish line. His reception in Harrisburg the other evening was very enthusiastic and gave promise of a stirring canvass.

"General Beaver is as brave and dauntless politically as he was on the field of battle. He declares that the party has no apologies to make, but that it will take the offensive just as soon as the Democrats have held their convention, and fight the campaign vigorously till the day of election. He claims that the Harrisburg ticket was as regularly nominated as any ever placed before the people, from ex-Governor Curtin's nomination to that of the present incumbent. General Beaver thinks the disaffection in the party has been exaggerated and will grow less as the campaign advances.

"We are likely to see a change of sentiment in Pennsylvania when the question is fairly presented as between Republican and Democratic ascendancy. It would be a great misfortune for the Keystone state to fall into the hands of the Democrats. If they carry the state ticket they would be morally certain to carry the legislature and make a large gain of congressmen. The state has not yet been re-apportioned for congressman, and it is well known from past experience how shamefully the Democrats would gerrymander the districts if they have the opportunity. When it comes right down to the sole question whether the government of Pennsylvania shall be turned over to the Democrats we think there will be some sober, second thoughts which will have the effect to turn the tide and save the party. The fact that the Democrats all over the country are building great hopes upon divisions within the Republican party ought to be a warning and incentive to all members of the good old organization which Lincoln helped to found."

Beaver at Chicago.

Our friend, Col. Wm. Shortlidge, informs the readers of the Philadelphia Press and all other persons who are interested in the true welfare of the Republican party why he is a Beaver man. In doing so he states that he does not believe that General Beaver misrepresented his constituents in voting for General Grant at Chicago, but followed his convictions of duty. The position taken by Mr. Shortlidge is based on excellent reasons, and should receive the consideration of all persons who hesitate to support General Beaver because of his action at Chicago:

To the Editor of the Press.

SIR: When the Republican Committee of Centre County met to elect delegates to the Harrisburg Convention which was to select delegates to the National Convention at Chicago in 1880, there was no possible misunderstanding as to General Beaver's position. In the first place, Centre county, by rotation, was entitled to a delegate to the National Convention. This being understood, it was generally conceded by all Republicans that General Beaver was our representative man, and would best serve the interest of the party. I was a member of the committee, and a Blaine man. Prior to the meeting of the committee I called on General Beaver, and stated to him that I believed it was the desire of the Republicans of our county that he should represent us at Chicago, and asked him for whom he would vote in the event of his appointment as delegate to Chicago. He replied: "I will vote for General Grant. I will not go back on my old commander." In the event that General Grant shall be withdrawn or cease to be a candidate before a nomination shall have been made, I will vote for James G. Blaine." Before the delegates were elected to the Harrisburg Convention I stated to a caucus of the Blaine members of the County Committee the above conversation with General Beaver. We did not believe that Grant would be a formidable candidate before the Chicago Convention, and being anxious to serve General Beaver we concluded that we would give him the support of his own county and send Beaver delegates to the State Convention uninstructed. I was at that time as I am now a Blaine man. Last year I voted for Mr. Wolf; but I believe General Beaver is the choice of the great mass of the Republicans of Pennsylvania and was fairly nominated by them, and I am unequivocally and enthusiastically in favor of him for Governor, and I assert that, the statement, that he in any wise betrayed his constituents at Chicago is unqualifiedly false. Yours truly,

WILLIAM SHORTLIDGE.

Bellefonte, Pa., June 7, 1882.

A World correspondent visiting the Mormons has found a great deal deal to admire in their social life, and writes a flattering account of one of their settlements, called Logan, a place of four thousand inhabitants, where every man owns his farm, and there are only two policemen, who have so little to do that they engage in other business. It is not because of their polygamous practices, however, that these Mormon settlers maintain good order without the intervention of the police. In fact the proportion of polygamists is very small. The population is select, in the first place, as to the sobriety, industry and thrifty habits of its members. Then, too, they have banished liquor from the settlement. When liquor was sold there a murder was committed in a drinking saloon, and those now orderly townsfolks lynched the murderer and abolished the liquor traffic. After a time licenses were again issued, and there were soon ten times as many prisoners in jail as before the opening of saloons. The latter were then definitely closed, with the result that Logan cannot find full employment for its police force of two men. Polygamy, or the absence of it, has nothing to do what ver with this—in fact, there are other settlements, such as Vineland, where similarly good results were obtained, first, by the thrifty habits of the people, and next, by forbidding the sale of liquor.

THERE is nothing small about Mr. Michael Davitt. He has a plan for the pacification of Ireland which completely throws all Mr. Gladstone's projects into the shade. What he proposes is the purchase of Ireland outright from its Anglo-Saxon holders and grantees, and its delivery free from all incumbrances into the hands of the Irish population. Mr. Davitt is of opinion that not more than $700,000,000 would be required to consummate the proposed arrangement. and this amount he has no doubt the British government could easily borrow at five per cent. interest. Mr. Davitt omits to say by whom the interest is to be paid, but that is a mere detail.

EUROPE is taking gold from us again in considerable quantities, and is sending us in exchange immense numbers of her laboring population, whose actual value to this nation is transcendently greater than all the gold we lose. This process has now been continued without interruption for very many years, and under its operation the Republic has arisen to be one of the greatest, wealthiest, most powerful and prosperous nations in the civilized world. The exchange is, therefore, very decidedly in our favor.

THE Democrats are said to be on the hunt for a one-legged candidate to pit against Beaver. In the event of a fruitless search perhaps some self-sacrificing patriot will submit to have a leg sawed off to accommodate the party leaders. In this suggestion may be found an excellent opportunity for some enthusiastic Democrat to show his devotion to party principles.

THE record of would-be Governor Stewart is a good specimen of the sincerity of the men who want to "reform" the Republican party by defeating it. A hungry office-hunter chosen to head the "Independent" ticket will serve the good purpose of showing people which way the wind blows.

GENERAL NOTES.

THE city of San Francisco is soon to erect a monument to the memory of President Garfield.

THE English civil engineer, Douglass, is to be knighted for his successful work in the erection of the new Eddystone lighthouse.

MR. JOHN DAVIS, who died in England in 1788, considerately bequeathed $1.25 to his widow, to enable her to get drunk once more, at his expense.

PROF. GNEIST of the law faculty at Berlin and liberal member of the German Imperial Parliament, has just produced a complete "Constitutional History of England" from the Anglo-Saxon times.

OUR esteemed contemporary the Cincinnati Gazette has a very interesting article on "Poems for the Occasion," but it fails to mention the most remarkable author of such poems, Mr. G. W. Childs, A. M., of Philadelphia.

"LONG" JOHN WENTWORTH, who claims to be the direct descendant of Benning Wentworth (from whom Bennington, Vt., was named), Colonial Governor of New Hampshire has published in Chicago his geneology, in three octavo volumes.

THE Philadelphia Dime Museum has been compelled to close its doors. A newsboy, possibly feeling that he was not getting the worth of his admission money, wrung the neck of the educated cockatoo, and the show couldn't stand the loss of that performer.

JUST as a girl was about to drown herself at Athens, Ala., a man caught her. She struggled, but he held her fast. "I'll give you ten minutes to think it over," he said, "and if you then want to die I'll let you do it." When the time was up he released her, and she quietly went home.

ON May 12 the Forty-second Highlanders escorted the heralds and pursuivants of Scotland to the Cross of Edinburgh, where a royal proclamation was made authorizing the circulation of British coins as current money in Cyprus. The connection seems somewhat remote to outsiders.

CARD playing is practiced in no country to so great an extent as in Russia. All ages and both sexes are passionately fond of it. The manufacture of playing cards is a government monopoly, and there is only one factory, from which 24,000 packs are turned out daily, or over 7,000,000 a year.

THE New Hotel de Ville in Paris will be opened on July 14. A grand banquet of 450 covers will be given in the hall of state. The diplomatic corps, the municipality and government bodies, and the mayors of the chief French and foreign towns, including the burgomaster of Berlin, have been invited.

BANJO playing is becoming a fashionable accomplishment in Connecticut, and some of the prettiest young ladies and matrons of Hartford display much proficiency in performing on the despised instrument heretofore monopolized by the negro minstrel troupes. It is in special demand for summer evenings, out of doors, with vocal accompaniment.

DR. NORMAN KERR recently stated, in Exeter Hall, London, that of the 34,000,000 cases of disease every year in the United Kingdom a large proportion arose from indulgence in intoxicants. Some seventy diseases are described as arising directly from alcohol. The estimated annual mortality caused directly and indirectly by drinking was given at 120,000.

CASES of alleviation of heart trouble are freely reported in the medical journals as due to the use of nitro-glycerine in drop doses. The effects of the drug are described as sedative, gently narcotic, and, in larger doses, not unlike alcohol. It would be interesting to know how soon a "nitro-glycerine habit" will be added to the increasing varieties of drug enslavement.

THE Bishop of St. Albans has admitted four ladies as the first sisters of the newly-established community of the Name of Jesus, at Maplestead, in England. The community has been formed on the model afforded by the Ursulines. The sisters make no vows for life, but only of poverty, chastity, and obedience, revokable from time to time. Their primary, but by no means their only work, is in penitentiaries.

JULIAN MOBLEY drew a sharp knife at Edgefield, S. C., and slashed an inoffensive stranger from shoulder to wrist. They had never met before, and not a word preceded the attack. The explanation is that Mobley's natural murderousness was increased by drink. The Edgefield Advertiser gently admonishes him that he "ought to be restrained," and if he does that way again "justice will have to take its course."

BELGRAVIA, one of the fashionable quarters of London, was startled a few nights since by a loud explosion. It was found to have proceeded from a tin canister filled with some explosive substance, which had been lighted by a fuse, and placed in the area of a house lately belonging to Mr. Leo Schuster. No cause can be assigned for this wanton piece of mischief. The house was for sale, and the auction announced to take place the next day of all the furniture and pictures.

A PETITION recently addressed to the Minister of the Interior by the inhabitants of the quarter in Paris in which the Rue de la Palx is situated, representing that the number of suicides who have thrown themselves from the top of the Vendome monument has been alarmingly on the increase of late. It is suggested that no person should be allowed to ascend the monument until the summit shall have been caged in with iron bars, or some other means shall have been devised to prevent these melancholy catastrophes.

MIGUEL OTERO, vice-president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, was about to die in Denver. He was a Roman Catholic and the Rev. Father Pinto was called to attend him. The priest told him that before absolution he must renounce Free Masonry. He refused, and died under the ban of the Church. Acting under the order of his Bishop, Father Pinto excluded the remains from the Catholic Church and graveyard. This caused excitement, and the masons conducted burial services with unusual pomp.

Poetry.

THE WAYSIDE WELL.

He stopped at the wayside well,
Where the water was cool and deep;
There were feathery ferns twixt the mossy stones,
And gray was the old well sweep.

He left his carriage alone;
Nor could coachman or footman tell
Why the master stopped in the dusty road
to drink at the wayside well.

He swayed with his gloved hands
The well-sweep creaking and slow,
While the seam and scar in the bucket's side
The water splashed back below.

He lifted it to the curb,
And bent down to the bucket's brim;
No furrow of time or care had marked
The face that looked back at him.

He saw but a farmer's boy
As he stooped o'er the brim to drink,
And ruddy and tanned was the laughing face
That met his over the brink.

The eyes were sunny and clear,
And the brow undimmed by care,
While from under the brim of the old straw hat
Strayed curls of chestnut hair.

He turned away with a sigh,
Nor could coachman or footman tell
Why the master stopped in his ride that day
To drink at the wayside well.

THE POLE FIEND.

By the always frozen sea,
In the land of endless snow,
Is the Pole Fiend glad and free.
With his victims lying low.

He has lured them on and on,
By the mystic polar spell,
Till at last their cruise is done,
And he has them coffined well.

From a tall and icy crag,
In the furthest frozen zone,
He can float his steel-blue flag
From his unpolluted throne.

And he laughs in horrid glee,
As he sees the dead below,
By the always frozen sea,
In the land of endless snow.

Is the North Pole nearer yet,
For the dead man lying there!
Is the pathway less beset,
Or the sky or sea more fair?

We have paid a fearful price
For an almost worthless gain
In the land of ancient ice
And the Pole Fiend's dark domain.

We may let him keep his throne;
It was never worth the cost
Of the precious ones, our own
Who are lost among the lost.

—"What is it, mother?"
"A masher, dear;
You may always find it standing here,
Posed on the corner of the street,
Proudly displaying its tiny feet;
Twirling its little ten-cent cane;
And stupifying its tender brain
With the smoke of a paper cigarette—
Don't touch it, dear, it was raised a pet."

"Will it bite, mother?"
"Well, I should shout;
It will bite free lunch for all that's out."
"Well, why doesn't Barnum buy the thing
And tie it up with a piece of string?
No other monkey in all his show
Would prove such a drawing card, I know,
But for me, I'd chew gum all my life
Rather than be a masher's wife."

—Now doth the little onion
Poke up its little head,
And the restless little radish
Stretch in its little bed.

The sunfish and the minnow
Wag their shiny little tails,
While the chipmunk and the robin
Adorn the fence's rails.

Our Story Teller.

Jessie's Lovers.

"Oh, dear me!" thought pretty little Jessie Howard, holding her head to one side like a meditative sparrow as she stood beside the sitting room window. "I'm sure poor Seth is a splendid fellow, but Harry is so handsome, with his blue eyes and tawny moustache, that I am at a loss how to decide. Aunt Lydia declares that it is the easiest thing in the world to accomplish, but, for my part I think it is the most difficult task I ever encountered. How on earth am I to find out whether my two suitors love me or the fortune which dear Aunt Lydia is going to leave me? Why it sounds just like a chapter out of a novel. I always did yearn to get into romantic scrapes. I wonder if I'll ever be able to solve my conundrum as agreeably as the heroines of fiction always manage to do? It would be perfectly splendid if I could."

And clasping her little hands before her she gazed dreamily out upon the gloomy scene where the snow was falling silently and ceaselessly, covering all with its feathery flakes.

The twilight was deepening, a cold, death-like stillness reigned in the frosty air and the scene looked gray and spectral in the gathering gloom.

"It is almost five o'clock," she said to herself, turning slowly away from the window. "I must get supper ready now. Of course I'll tell auntie just what I intend to do, although I know she'll say right away that I ought to have poor Seth. Well, at any rate I'll test my two lovers and then I'll be able to decide."

She went into the large, old fashioned kitchen where Aunt Lydia sat knitting before the great, blazing fire.

She sang softly as she prepared the supper, while the old lady, with a smile, leaned back in her chintz-cushioned rocking chair, and watched her pretty, little brown eyed neice.

"Jessie, my dear girl," she said at last, taking off her silver-trimmed spectacles and rubbing them carefully with the corner of her handkerchief. "I want to have a little talk with you upon a very important subject."

"Well, auntie, what is it? she asked. "You are going to lecture me about Seth, aren't you?"

"Jessie," the old lady began, slowly, "this is a very serious affair. Do not ridicule it, because I'll not tolerate that. It is for your own good that I have ventured to broach this subject. Since you have become acquainted with Mr. Eldridge I have noticed how heartlessly you have set aside poor Seth Morris. Mr. Eldridge's handsome face and blue eyes have fascinated you; but oh, my dear girl, you are not doing right. If you do not love Seth, be frank at least, and admit that fact, because that poor, good hearted fellow fairly worships you. And you must recollect that a woman knows very little about the habits and character of a man until she is married to him and past all escape."

Jessie opened her lovely brown eyes wider than ever.

"But, auntie. Har—Mr. Eldridge is so handsome and pleasant. Why, you have no idea what a splendid young man he—"

"A model of amiability and good temper, I suppose," the old lady interrupted, "That is all you know about the ideal of yours, isn't it?"

Jessie's cheeks flushed prettily, and her eyes filled with merry mischief.

"Now don't be too severe with me, auntie," she responded, "until I have told you what I intend to do. Of course as you know yourself, when a girl has two lovers, it is quite a difficult task for her to decide at once which one she prefers. Well, at any rate, I have made up my mind to test Seth and Harry, and the one who is fortunate enough to come out all right in the ordeal can claim Jessie Howard as his own for life."

"How on earth are you going to accomplish that? It is all very well to read about auch things in a novel, and—"

But the sudden opening of the door interrupted Aunt Lydia, and old John Howard entered the warm kitchen, while Jessie with a sigh of relief, knew that "very important subject" was ended for that evening.

On the following afternoon our little hereine felt somewhat lonely, and wrapping herself up warmly she ran over to see Lizzie Lawton, one of her school friends.

"I've come to see if you were in the land of the living yet, Liz," said Jessie with a rippling laugh, as she kissed her friend. "Isn't it a wretched day?"

"Wretched is no name for it," said little, golden-haired Lizzie. "Mamma is up in her room nursing her periodical headache, and I was on the point of running over to see you. But, dear me, have you heard the news?"

"No," Jessie replied tossing back a stray curl from her forehead. "What is it, Liz?"

"Seth Morris is going to marry Miss Archer. She told me all about the engagement this morning. Don't you feel well?"

For poor Jessie's face suddenly turned deathly pale, and a look of horror crept into her eyes.

"Is it true, Lizzie?" she asked, trying to quell the quiver in her voice.

"Every word of it is true," Lizzie responded. "Of course I know about that little love affair between Seth and you, but you are very foolish if you go mourning over the loss of such a heartless lover. The idea of Seth tying himself down to that disagreeable Miss Archer when he could have got you. And she had the impudence to tell me that you had treated Seth shamefully, and it was no wonder he didn't ask you to marry him. Oh, Jessie when she said that, I flew up in a terrible passion and gave her a piece of my mind, and so the end of it was, we had a fearful quarrel. She is the most spiteful thing I ever encountered. Now, don't feel badly about it, because you are not to blame for Seth's faithlessness."

But all through that afternoon there was a dull, aching pain at poor Jessie's heart, and, and last, she bid Lizzie good by, and went slowly home with a sad look on her pretty face—a look that did not escape Aunt Lydia's eyes as the girl entered the sitting room where the old lady sat beside the dimity-curtained window.

Of course Jessie gathered up her courage and told Aunt Lydia all that she had heard, and the old lady almost beside herself with amazement, could only try to soothe our little heroine in her kind, motherly way.

Oh, if Seth had only known how dearly she loved him, she felt confident that he would never have cast her aside so cruelly.

Then the handsome face and blue eyes of Harry Eldridge would suddenly loom up before her, and she would find herself wondering which of her two suitors she really loved.

"Well, at any rate," she thought, "I'll put Harry to the test now since Seth has been weighed in the balance and found wanting."

But Jessie was saved the trouble of taking that romantic step, for an hour later John Howard came into the kitchen with the starting news that Mr. Harry Eldridge had been arrested for being implicated in a daring bank robbery which was committed in Boston about two months ago.

Jessie listened like one in a dream. It seemed to her as if some cruel hand had suddenly grasped her heart. But at last she managed to slip up to her room where she had a good cry, and finally declared that she was the luckiest girl in the world to have rid herself of her two faithless lovers.

"Although I can blame no one but myself for having lost Seth," she thought sadly. "I never for a moment guessed how dearly I loved him until I heard of his engagement to Miss Archer. Oh, if some prophetic voice had only told me what a bold, wicked man Mr. Eldridge was I'm sure I'd not have hurt poor Seth's heart so cruelly."

But the next day when she returned home from a walk in the woods, she found Seth patiently awaiting her in the sitting room.

"Jessie," he said, holding out his hand to her in his frank, manly way, "do not think too harshly of me until I have explained all to you. I have come to contradict the rumor that Miss Archer is to be my wife. She was to have married my brother William, but he was killed in a railway accident, and since his death her brain has weakened and she has fancied of late that I am her future lord and master. I never could feel angry toward the unfortunate girl, but in turn have always humored her hallucinations. The Archers have tried to keep her insanity a secret, but she is getting worse, and sooner or later the world cannot help but guess the truth. Oh, Jessie, do not turn from me now while you have the power to make me one of the happiest men on earth, for you are the only woman I ever loved, and I want you to be my precious little wife!"

With a low, glad cry, she flew to his breast, and sobbed out her happy answered.

"I cannot say no, Seth, because, oh, I love you—I love you so!"

And the day came at last when the little ivy-covered church was opened for the rare occasion of a wedding, and Jessie, radient with happiness, became Seth Morris' wife; while just before they started on their bridal trip, the news came that poor Miss Archer was dead.

Reginald Mulcahey's Love.

"I prithee do not go."

Reginald Mulcahey turned as these words, spoken in tones that were tenderly thrilling, fell upon his good right ear and advanced slowly up the plank sidewalk that led from the porticullis to the front steps of the terraced castle of Ethelbert McMurtry, Eighth Duke of Blue Island avenue.

"I thought you would speak to me, Lady Constance," he said to a tall, shapely maiden of nineteen summers, who stood on the veranda of the castle. "I thought you could not send me away forever without one word of hope—one little, tiny, Democratic-vote-in-Iowa hope. I know full well that in the dreary, dismal New York Post editorial future which rises up before me like a black-winged spectre of the night, there can be naught in my life but desolate days whose hours shall pass with leaden feet, and black, bitter nights when I shall toss around restlessly in a poker game, thinking only of the love that has gone from me forever. We may never meet again, Constance—probably never shall, unless I begin going to the matinees—but I should like to feel that, although you may never love me again, never let me buy candy for you, there is still in your heart a kindly feeling, a tinge of pity, for one to whom your sweet face has so many, many years—way back before the White Stockings won the championship—been a beacon-light to guide him safely o'er the wind-swept sea of North side life. Am I hoping for too much?" and the beautiful brown eyes that had witched so many from behind the ribbon counter looked into those of Constance McMurtry with a wistful, pleading, don't-untie-the dog-if-you-love-me look that would have melted a heart of Chicago beefsteak.

For an instant the girl did not reply. A look of pain, as if some sad memory had been recalled by Reginald's words, or a corset steel got loose, passed over her face, and then, regaining her composure by a mighty effort, she placed a tiny gloved hand on the young man's shoulder and spoke in low, measured tones that showed, far more than could any words, the intensity of the agony that this separation was causing her.

"For two years, Reginald," she said, "I have loved you with a deep, passionate, all-absorbing love that would make your head swim if you only knew about it. I have looked forward with pride and joy in my girlish innocence and enthusiasm to the day when you should lead me to the nuptial altar and crown the sweet springtime of my life with the golden glory of a love that should last forever. I had whispered to myself that I should make you a faithful, loving, always-have-breakfast-in-time wife. There has come to me often a vision of a happy home, where I should pass my days in happiness and stocking-mending. But the vision has gone, the beautiful blue sky with its fringe of rose-tinted clouds has passed away, and in its place I see an angry firmament, across which drift the leaden clouds of despair. And so it is better that we should part now, before supper, and let the dead past be its own undertaker.

Reginald saw that all hope was gone, that he was certain to be left on third base. "Good-by, Constance," he murmured, "I must go now, because I want to stop on my way over town and buy my sister a sealskin sacque."

The girl turned quickly and looked at him earnestly. "Do you mean what you say?" she asked in hoarse, anxious tones.

"I do," was the reply.

"And would you buy your wife a sealskin sacque?"

"Certainly," said Reginald; "two of them, if she liked."

A happy smile spread over the girl's face. Twining her arms around Reginald's neck, she placed her tiny head on his shoulder, and then the little rosebud mouth puckered up with a sweet, beatific pucker, as she said in tender tones:

"You may call again this evening. Heaven intended us for each other."
—From "The Bluff that Constance Called," by Murat Halstead.

She hung upon his arm lovingly and beamed up in his face with all the radiance of those pale blue eyes. Her heart would speak, and yet the tongue refused its utterance. But love and admiration broke the spell and from the rapture of her soul she breathed forth, "Your mustache is beginning to grow, George."

STEWART, OF FRANKLIN.

HIS CAREER AS A POLITICIAN.

The Causes which Induced the Would-be Governor to Embrace the Independent Faith—A Determined Office-Seeker.

[Correspondence of Phila. Evening Bulletin.]

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., June 2.—It seems that the gentleman chosen by the Independents to head their State ticket, Hon. John Stewart, is very widely known in Franklin county, especially by those who have been actively engaged in political affairs. His first appearance in Chambersburg was as a newly fledged lawyer, fresh from his studies. He was inclined to be ambitious and seemed to be absorbed with a desire for political distinction. Scarcely had he hung out his shingle when he sent an application to Hon. Simon Cameron, then United States Senator, requesting his influence and asking for an appointment as assessor of internal revenue for the Sixteenth Congressional District. The request, however, availed nothing, General Aschorn, of Bedford county, being selected for the place coveted by Stewart. The young lawyer took a dislike to Cameron because he had not hearkened to his importunities, and from that time set his face against the Republican leader. It was not long after this, however, that he became seized with a desire to be Register in Bankruptcy for the Sixteenth Congressional District and again he sought Cameron's aid. It is probable that the Senator had been informed of the young man's bitterness over his former failure, and it is not unlikely that some of his harsh words had been carried to Cameron's ears. At any rate the Senator did not see fit to endorse him, and the appointment went to Hastings Gehr, Esq. This second disappointment increased Stewart's ill will towards Cameron tenfold. For a few years he was disinclined to make any further effort to gain political honors, and he led a somewhat uneventful life, practicing his profession, and never failing to get in a word against Simon Cameron when the opportunity offered.

CONSTITUTIONAL SALARY GRABBERS.

In 1874 Stewart was a candidate for Congress, but was fairly defeated in the conference by Gen. Lang. Wister, of Duncannon, Perry county. He certainly could not lay his defeat at the door of the detested Cameron, but so annoyed was he that he refused to give Gen. Wister the least assistance, sulking through the campaign, and voting, it is generally understood, for Hon. W. S. Stenger, the Democratic candidate, after having been repeatedly heard discoursing on that gentleman's merits. Shortly afterwards he was a candidate for election as delegate to the Constitutional Convention, having been nominated by the Republican party. Col. Henderson, of Carlisle, was his Republican colleague, but it is a well-known fact that Stewart and his friends dropped Henderson from their ticket and voted for Honorable J. McDowell Sharpe, a Democrat, in order that Stewart and Sharpe both might go the Convention. They were both elected, Henderson being defeated through Stewart's perfidy. In the Convention Sharpe and Stewart were loud in their demands that a stop should be forever put to the State legislators increasing their salary for the term for which they were elected, and they voted for an article securing this end. Notwithstanding this, they each voted to raise their own salaries from $1,000, fixed by the Act of Assembly prior to their election, to $3,500. The measure was adopted and they each pocketed the additional $1,500, becoming known in Franklin county as the Constitutional Salary Grabbers. Jere Cook, Esq., the editor of the Franklin Repository, a leading paper in Southern Pennsylvania, attacked them through the columns of his journal for their sham pretensions of being reformers, and exposed their inconsistency. For this exposure, Stewart afterwards opposed Cook when he was a candidate for County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, energetically working against him and voting for the election of Hiram M. White, the Democratic nominee, whom he had stated he believed to be the "meanest white man in Franklin county."

BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT,

In the fall of 1876 Stewart became a candidate for the State Senatorship, representing the district comprising Franklin and Huntingdon counties. The Franklin county conferences favored his election, while those from Huntingdon insisted that Hon. H. G. Fisher should be chosen, on the ground that Thad. M. Mahon, Esq., of Franklin, had received the nomination for Congress from the Eighteenth district, of which Huntingdon was a part, and that it would not be fair to take both men from Franklin county. After a long and bitter fight Fisher was nominated, and again Stewart was seized with a fit of the "dumps." He sulked through the campaign, and did little or nothing for the Republican ticket. Mahon was making a determined fight against Stenger, who was on the Democratic ticket for re-election. The fact that Stenger had over 1,100 majority on the occasion of his first election stared him in the face, but he fought hard, and succeeded in cutting down the Democratic majority this time to a mere handful of votes (30), but failed in securing the Senatorship. Had Stewart worked for the ticket there is no doubt but that Mahon would have been elected. Stewart, however, did not work, but he lost no opportunity to get in a word against the Republican candidate, and whether or not he voted for him is an open question, the Democrats saying he voted for Stenger. It is certainly a fact that his relatives worked and voted for the Democratic nominee. Stewart, however, was not to be baffled. He had an insatiate desire for office, and he now turned his face toward the National Capital with the idea of securing some position under the Federal Government. Hearing of the death of Hon. John Cadwalader, Judge of the U. S. District Court at Philadelphia, he set his friends to work to win for him the Judgeship. Petitions and letters in large numbers were sent to Senator Cameron, urging him to look with favor on the young lawyer from Franklin. Stewart had begun to count upon success when again his hopes were blasted, and the present incumbent, Judge Butler, was placed upon the bench. Stewart's hatred of Cameron was further intensified by this last disappointment, and he continued to heap abuse upon the Senator from Pennsylvania.

IN THE STATE SENATE.

At the end of Fisher's term in the State Senate, Stewart, who, it is to be noted, has attempted to gain favor under the guise of a non-office-seeker, was hot foot after the Senatorship. Franklin county Republicans again gave him the nomination and Huntingdon ratified it. He was forgiven his past political shortcomings, because a United States Senator was to be elected, and he was sent to the senate to represent the Thirty-third District. Almost his first work in the Senate was to join the revolt against the caucus nominee for Senator, casting his vote for Galusha A. Grow. After this struggle was maintained for some time, and the safety of the party threatened, a compromise was made which is fresh in the minds of the people. Hon. John I. Mitchell was, as compromise candidate, elected to the Senate. It is now well known that Mitchell was slated by Senator Stewart and Don Cameron, at Cameron's house, and then presented to the Committee on Compromise. At least Stewart told his friends in Chambersburg that was the way it was brought about. Stewart himself had got the Senatorial bee in his bonnet, and expected after the joint committee had been appointed it would select him as the man. Wolf of Union, had the same trouble, and submitted his case to the Independents. But Stewart sat down upon the aspirations of the Senator from Union, because it shut the way for his promotion to the coveted place. Wolfe saw through Stewart's little game, and as soon as Stewart was placed upon the joint committee to select a name to be voted for Senator, he offered, or had offered, a resolution in the House to the effect that no member of the joint committee should be selected as a compromise candidate. This effectually spiked Stewart's Senatorial gun.

STORY OF THE MEXICAN MISSION.

After a vain effort to secure the Gubernatorial nomination, he again attempted to ingratiate himself with the Camerons, by seconding and speaking in favor of a resolution offered in the State Senate, endorsing Senator Don Cameron's course in urging the election of a Secretary and Sergeant at-Arms in the United States Senate over which there had been a long dead-lock. All the anti-Cameron men in the State were surprised at Stewart's course, and the universal exclamation that came from the foes of Cameron was: "There is something wrong! Stewart has gone over to the Cameron camp" And there were those who asserted that Stewart was playing for the Mexican Mission and Cameron's support in his ambitious aim. How near right they were may be seen. A few weeks afterward his friend, Senator Lee, came to Chambersburg, and after consultation with Stewart returned to Washington, and made the request that the State Senator from Franklin be sent to Mexico, although the Minister at that time could not be removed for cause. Civil Service rules were to be strained, a good man was to be removed, simply to reward the Pennsylvania lawyer. Mitchell was in favor of it, and Cameron was satisfied if President Garfield saw fit to make the change. It is said that Stewart was so confident that he would receive the nomination that he bought a broad-brimmed sombrero, wheel spurs and a Mexican saddle, and that he studiously exposed himself to the sun in order to obtain a fitting complexion. But again disappointment awaited him. The Administration had fixed principles regarding the civil service, and no one could be removed except for cause. Stewart was thrown into a towering rage and denounced Cameron in unmeasured terms. Cameron was inclined to do what he could for the young man in view of his disappointment, and said that if the Harrisburg Convention chose to nominate Stewart for the Supreme Judgeship, he would give him his support. Stewart was again happy. His home organ endorsed his candidacy, but the Independent journals througout the State failed to second the nomination. Nevertheless he was hopeful. He endorsed Beaver's candidacy, and asserted that he was the choice of a large majority of the Republicans of the State, and should be nominated. On the day of the Republican County Convention he took an active part, and said that the men for whom he was working were for Beaver. He also advocated the nomination of his old friend Davies for Lieutenant-Governor. He asked the Convention to elect the delegates he named as a vindication of himself and his course, but the Convention preferred to elect three Beaver men about whom there could be no mistake, and to let Stewart's vindication take care of itself. Recent events show how wise was this course. After this defeat at the hands of his neighbors, Stewart swore vengeance. He declared war on all who had refused to aid him in his ambition for office. He gave up all hope of any favor from the Republican party, and made up his mind to cast his lot with the "kickers," and do what he could to defeat the party that honored him in some things and refused to honor him in others.

OPENLY OPPOSED TO WOLF.

There are other inconsistencies in his political wanderings that will not shed much lustre on the Independent candidate for Governor. After the Republican Convention of 1872 had nominated General Hartranft, Stewart became dissatisfied with the nomination. He made but one speech in the campaign, and that did more harm than good.

After Buckalew's defeat, Stewart came out openly for Grant, and following the Convention of 1881, when Wolf set himself to oppose General Baily, he (Stewart) declared his opposition to Wolf in a printed card, and said he would stand by Baily, the regular nominee. He then emphatically condemned the Independent movement. He declared openly upon the streets of Chambersburg that Wolf was an ass, a cracked-brained fool, &c. Stewart was instrumental in calling and bringing into life the Continental Conference. He was selected to draw up a platform of principles for the Independents of the State In that platform he again announced that the fight must be made within the party. For the ground taken by him no man abused him with more emphasis than did John A. Seiders, the chairman of the Independents of Franklin county. Stewart opposed Cessna when he ran for Congress in the Sixteenth Congressional District, and also voted against Hastings Gehr for re-election to the Legislature.

His reception after his nomination as Independent candidate for Governor was principally by the Democrats. Franklin county can poll about 4,900 Republican votes and at least 4,400 of these will be given for General Beaver. When the fight is over the result will show that the people of Franklin county believe in the protection of our industries, education of our children, rights of all men before the law, national credit to be kept sacred, and other great questions for the nation's good respected. * * * *

A Reference.

"Have you a recommendation, my boy?"

"Yes, sir."

Robert had been seeking a situation for almost a week, and now that he had at last met with something that promised success he was as nervous as a boy can be. His hand went down into his jacket pocket—a handkerchief, a pecil, a strap, but no recommendation. He emptied another pocket, but without success.

"Ah, there it is; you have dropped it on the floor," said the merchant, who was standing by waiting, as a bit of paper fell to the floor.

"No, sir; that is only my pledge," Robert said, as he picked it up.

"Your pledge?"

Yes, sir."

"May I see it?"

Robert handed him the temperance pledge, and continued his search for the missing paper, growing more and more nervous as he turned his pockets inside out.

"I have it," said the merchant.

"Sir?"

"This is your recommendation. I am willing to trust a boy who puts his name to a promise like this. You are your own reference, my dear boy," replied the merchant.

'Neath Night's Bespangled Arch.

Beneath the night's bespangled arch they were strolling along unconscious of aught save the intermitting fancies of their twain hearts. Suddenly they paused, and gazing at a ruddy star that flashed like a great ruby in the firmament, she said:

"Diomedes! what rufescent orb is that which winks with bloody eye from yonder dome?"

"That, Andromeda," spake her courtier knight, "is Mars, the wad of gore—beg pardon, I mean the god of war."

"Ah, yes! and looks he not like some gaunt Achilles, armored for conquest, bidding defiance to the hosts of Hades?"

"He doth, Andromeda, he doth! Or like some grim avenger furling a hoe—dash it! I mean hurling a foe—to the death!"

Slapping His Wife All To Pieces.

Mr. Jones was passing a dry goods store the other day when he saw his wife standing near a counter and the idea occurred to him to give her a little start, so he walked boldly in, and as she stood with her back to him gave her a rousing slap on the shoulder. The effect was not exactly what he had anticipated; there was a hollow, reverberating sound like the vibrations of a smoke stack, the elegant bonnet which looked so familiar to him fell off, and a headless woman stood before Jones, who realized the fact that he had taken the store dummy for his wife. There was considerable audible mirth as he sadly and silently retreated, wondering how two women could look so much alike.

A Splendid Joke on his Wife.

Dave Goudy is one of the dryest jokers in the world, and he had just as soon play a joke on a member of his own family as not. Dave's wife is a friend of his, and so she is subject to his jokes. She hates Indians, and always locks the doors when she sees the beggars who camp around Beaver Dam coming toward the house. Dave, knew this, so he hired an Indian to go up to the house and get in with a pass key, and beg a pair of Dave's old pants of the good wife, which she would gladly give to get rid of him, and then offered the Indian half a dollar if he would go right into the parlor and put the pants on. Dave thought it would be a splendid joke on his wife, and he got a drug store man named Griffis to go with him and watch the fun from a distance. The Indian got in the house, and when he asked for a pair of old pants the good lady saw through the joke and she gave him Dave's Sunday pants, and he went in the parlor and was going to put them on. This was too much for her, and she went to the kitchen and got a dipper of hot water. Nobody knows exactly what occurred, but Dave and Griffis suddenly saw an Indian come out of the front door, with one leg in a pair of black doeskin pants and the other pants leg dangling in the air and the Indian yelled as though he was in pain, and he pulled for the camp up the lake about six miles. As he passed the two gentlemen the Indian said: "Squaw heap spunky. Ugh! Hot water," and he was gone. Dave went home and asked what the news was, and found that he was out of a pair of Sunday pants in the pocket of which was $12 in money, and his wife says when he wants to send his friends up to the house for any more pants to do so, by all means. She will be at home.

Licking an Elder

One summer in the years agone, while a camp-meeting was in progress in Eaton county, there arrived on the grounds a bully named Miller, who had made a vow to lick Elder Johnson and break up the whole business. The elder heard the news with calm composure, and as soon as at liberty, he hunted up a worldly friend of his own and asked:

"Friend Smith, didn't you used to fight in your younger days?"

"Ah! Elder, I have had many a turn with the boys."

"And what is the effect of a sudden blow between the eyes?"

"It astonishes and humbles."

"Is there any danger of killing a man by such a blow?"

"Never knew a case of it."

The elder went his way with a serene smile on his face. Miller had his coat off, and was hunting for him, and they met face to face as they turned a wagon. Miller started to crack his heels and crow, but he never finished. The elder took him one square between the lookers without stopping his pace, and it took twelve rowdies, three dippers of water, and two quarts of whisky to revive the patient and get him off the grounds. One day, a year afterward, he met the elder, and seriously asked:

"Elder, some of the boys say I was kicked by a horse, and others stick to it that I was struck by lightning, but I've always had a suspicion that you hit me with a provision stand. How was it, anyhow?"—Detroit Free Press.

Going Him one Better.

An ingenious tramp, thinking to wring tears and money assistance from the stoniest hearts with a new scheme, gave it an experimental trial in the north end. He has decided not to patent the invention. He told a north end lady of his unfortunate condition, and asked if he might eat some of the grass in the yard. The lady, not less surprised than amused, said:

"Certainly."

He went out, and getting down on all fours, commenced on the grass after the neglected and never popular fashion of Nebuchadnezzar, and apparently not enjoying the diet any more than that ancient sinner of olden time. Presently the tramp's anxious eye caught sight of the servant girl beconing to him from the back yard. He thought a rich reward for his humility was in store and instantly responded.

"Did you mot'on to me?"

"Yes."

"What did you want?"

He now wore a look of hopeful expectancy.

"You may go in the back yard if you want to. The grass is taller there."

Nothing but What Any Horse Could Do.

At the Union Depot the other day an old man who had borrowed a match, then a chew of tobacco, then a postage stamp, and lastly besought the loan of a key to open his old satchel, came back the fifth time and said to the stranger whom he had most annoyed:

"My friend, can you tell me how many times the human heart beats per minute?"

"No, sir!"

"Can you tell who first discovered the circulation of the blood?"

"No, sir!"

"Do you know whether the pulse should beat seventy or more times a minute?"

"No, I don't. All I know about the human system is the fact that if you bother me two minutes longer I shall exert a pressure of 5,000 pounds in the endeavor to raise you about six feet from the floor!"

"Just so—just so," growled the old man, as he sidled off; "but don't try to pass that off on me for physical science. That's nothing but what any hoss could do!"

Peruna will tone your whole system.

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable: the discovery of which was the result of many years' close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms, and the cure—viz:

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption, at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Conflagration in Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.—The steamer Coptic, from Hong Kong via. Yokohama, brings the following news from Yokohama, dated May 10: "Serious fires are reported from Quaba and Yechigo provinces. In the former province a fire in May consumed one hundred and six'y houses and one district office. In the latter province on May 4 five hundred and twenty-cne houses, six temples and one school house were burned. A fire in Tokio on May 9 was not controlled until four hundred and twenty-eight houses were destroyed and twenty-nine seriously damaged.

Finish Their Work.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 8.—The veterans of the Union and Confederate armies completed the revision of the battle ground of the second day this morning and were entertained by the Battlefield Memorial Association at lunch on the Rose farm on the battlefield, after which they took their departure. There will be a reunion of veterans of the Army of the Potomac and Northern Virginia who fought in the first day's battle on Wednesday, June 14th. Many distinguished participants are expected.

A Circus Row.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 8.—Last night, at about the close of the Grand Circus Royal performance, a free fight was indulged in between the canvas men and a lot of roughs connected with the circus and a mixed crowd of negroes and boys, in which stones and clubs were freely used. A man named Albert M. Tehl, who was traveling with the circus, supposed to be from Union City received injuries from which he died to-day. Several others were slightly injured. A little crippled boy was kicked by one of the canvas men.

Democratic Senators in Council.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Immediately after adjournment of the senate today twenty-four of its democratic members assembled in caucus for the purpose of interchanging views in regard to the fitness of the president's nominations of tariff commissioners. No attempt was made to procure caucus action on the question, and at the conclusion of the conference (which lasted an hour and a half) every senator was left free to vote upon it in executive session according to his own judgment or his individual views.

Engineer Melville.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Lieutenant Danenhower has received information by mail from Irkutsk to the effect that letters from Engineer Melville, giving the particulars of the finding of the bodies of Lieutenant DeLong and his men, have reached there by courier from the Lena Delta. In a memorandum found on Lieutenant DeLong's body, and bearing the date of October 18, it is stated that four of the party are dead and Mr. Collins is dying.

Lynch Law.

CHICAGO, June 9.—A Herhom, Minnesota, special says: John Tribbetts, the boy who murdered Washington and Fehrbach, a few days since, was brought here yesterday and was examined before Justice Rothplose. Towards night the propriety of lynching him was freely discussed, but nothing was done. About 1 o'clock this morning, however, twenty resolute m n broke into the jail and, with great difficulty, broke open his cell and grasped him. He said: "Don't boys, this is too rough." The lynchers carried him to the railroad track, a few rods away, rested a ladder against a telegraph pole, looped one end of it around his neck, and throwing it over a round of the ladder, hauled away. He was dead in a few moments. The lynchers kept the crowd back with drawn revolvers, and as soon as the work was done they scattered in all directions. Tribbetts, who was only 17 years old, made a full confession last night. He laughed at the crowd that met him yesterday morning, but became depressed at night. The lynchers will probably not suffer for their crime.

A Woman of Pluck.

FAR ROCKWAY, N. Y., June 11.—A tramp called on Saturday at the house of William Parsall and demanded money of Mrs. Parsall, who was alone in the house with her child. Upon being refused he threatened to kill her. Picking up a large club he undertook to strike her. The plucky woman ran past him into the yard, and picking up a brickbat drove him off her premises. He threatened to return at at night and kill her. She had him arrested and brought before Justice Kealey, who committed him to the Queens county jail to await the action of the grand jury. The would-be murderer gave his name as David Pipper.

Titusville Tidings.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., June 9.—A little girl named Sontag, aged 3½ years, was instantly killed this afternoon by the falling of a movable partition at Schwarz's brewery here. Her brother, aged 6 years, was fatally wounded.

A special from Warren says Willie Ruhlman, aged 3 years, was accidentally killed this afternoon by being trampled on by a horse in the stable of George Culver.

James Nixon's planing mill, at Warren, was burned to day. Loss, $8,000.

Burglars at Work.

CAIRO, Ill., June 8.—Burglars entered the postoffice at Columbus last night by the use of skeleton keys, blew open the safe with powder and secured about two thousand dollars in government checks and a small amount of postage stamps; also, one hundred and fifty or two hundred watches. The policeman on the beat heard the explosion, but thought it was a pistol shot. The burglars were accompanied by two women, who are supposed to have escaped by a skiff. As yet no clue has been obtained as to their identity.

Masons in Council.

NEW YORK, June 8.—At the afternoon session of the grand lodge of Masons a dispatch was received from the grand lodge of Pennsylvania in quarterly communication acknowledging the salutation from the New York grand lodge, and expressing the hope that the true principles of Free Masonry, maintenance of its landmarks and of fraternal sentiment which it teaches may ever mark the history of both these grand bodies.

Counterfeiters Captured.

CHICAGO, June 8.—The secret service officers about midnight captured a gang of four counterfeiters with six hundred counterfeit dollars and a quantity of tools, moulds, etc. Their names are George Ellis, John H. Clark, Fred. Leland and David Arado. All are well known as shovers of the queer. Their room was on Wells street, near Kinsie, and the arrests were made at the pistol mouth.

Severe Hail Storm.

LAREDO, Texas, June 9.—The most severe hail storm ever known fell at Laredo yesterday evening. The hail was as large as hens' eggs. The walls of Babcock's new variety hall fell in, instantly killing Charlie Munster and wounding two others, one dangerously. The roofs of several houses falling caused damage to goods to an extent not yet known. It is feared that great damage has been done to sheep in this county.

Important Arrest.

CAIRO, Ill., June 9.—A man named John Kelly was arrested last night about half a mile south of Columbus, Ky., and proved to be one of the gang who robbed the postoffice at that place night before last. The watches stolen were found near where he was captured. Kelly gave the whole thing away. Diligent search is being made for the rest of the gang. Nothing besides the watches were recovered.

Crow Indians Stealing Horses.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming June 11.—Governor Hoyt received a telegram yesterday from Fort McKinney, stating that the Crow Indians were scattered all over the country killing cattle and stealing horses and that they should be ordered back to their reservations or trouble would result. The Crows are supposed to be peaceable but they are stealing from the settlers continually.

A Virginia Famine.

DANVILLE, Va., June 11.—A special courier arrived here yesterday from Patrick county, in this state, begging relief for the people of that county, five thousand of whom are starving for want of meal or flour. The total failure of their crops last year brought them to the verge of starvation many months ago, and now their slim supplies are entirely exhausted. Women and children have already died from starvation. There are three hundred people at Patrick court house who have not had anything to eat for two and three days. The county is situated in a remote and inaccessible part of Virginia. The roads are mountainous and bad. It takes a long time to reach the county. As much as $200 cash has been offered for a barrel of flour by some of the farmers in the county, but even money will not avail. Among the poorer classes the suffering is terrible. Efforts are being made to at once organize relief expeditions. One or two wagon loads of shelled corn reached the county on Thursday. Starving men, women and children clutched ravenously at the grains as they were given them and ate them raw.

Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 11.—All the mills in the Cincinnati region will commence operations to-morrow. There were seven stopped by the strike.

At a conference between a committee of rolling mill men and the mill owners to-day many of the members signed a modification of the compromise contract of last October, simply striking out the word "forever," which bound the workmen to a specified scale of wages perpetually. Great cheerfulness prevails among all parties over the result.

More than he Bargained For.

CARBONDALE, Pa., June 11.—A young man named Lowrey, while seated with some friends at a country inn near here, on Friday, was approached by a man named Stebbins who challenged any man to knock him down at one blow. Lowrey struck him a powerful blow in the chest and Stebbins fell dead from a burst blood vessel. Lowrey, who intended going to Canada, proceeded on his journey and has not yet been arrested.

No Cause to Strike.

CINCINNATI, June 9.—President Jarret, of the Amalgamated iron and steel workers, met the strikers of this vicinity at Covington to-night and after a patient hearing of the case as presented by the men delivered an opinion that their strike was not justifiable and that they were bound to continue at work under the terms of their contract of last October with the manufacturers. To-morrow he will confer with the mill owners, and it is confidently expected that the mills will be running again on Monday.

A Caucus.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—A call, signed by the chairman and secretary of the Philadelphia delegation to the republican state convention, has been issued for a caucus of the delegation to-morrow evening to consider the nomination of some Philadelphian for the office of congressmen-at-large. It is understood that nearly all the delegates are in favor of nominating John Wanamaker.

Struck with a Mallet.

CAIRO, June 9.—This morning J. G. Reeves, a saloon keeper, struck Charles Vandervoort, a switchman on the I. C. R. R., on the head with a wooden beer mallet. The blow will probably result fatally. Vandervoort owed Reeves money, and after paying his bill began using strong language towards Reeves with the above result.

A Reservoir Gives Way.

PORTLAND, Me., June 8.—This morning a break occurred on the east side of the reservoir, toward Vaugan street. A torrent of water poured through Vaugan street, crossing Congress street, then down the steep hill of Grove street, cutting a chasm ten feet wide, carrying away pavements, curbstones and shade trees and flooding cellars. No person was injured.

Trouble Anticipated.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9.—The Brookfield bank robbers, four in number, were surrounded in the woods about thirteen miles northwest of Kirksville at 6 a. m., and finding resistance useless surrendered. They were taken to Kirksville, where a number of their friends were congregated, and say the prisoners shall not be taken to Brookfield A fight is looked for.

Non-Union Men.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 9.—The Apolla, Pa., rolling mill, it is announced to-night, will start up Monday with non-union men. This firm, contrary to the custom of the manufacturer, did not give the usual $25 to the Amalgamated association to defray the expenses of the picnic. The lockout is causing a boom in the nail market and the full card rate of $340 is asked and maintained.

A Tragedy.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 11.—Gus Anders, proprietor of the Ocean View hotel, who it is thought has been made insane by protracted sickness, stabbed his wife Saturday afternoon, and then cut his own throat. Both are expected to die.

A New Telegraph Company.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 11.—The announcement is made that a new telegraph company with a capital of $21,000,900 has been organized; that work has actually begun on its lines in the east, and that they are to be pushed rapidly west, connecting all the principal cities. Elisha Gray, the electrician, gives the following facts in regard to it: The principal stockholders are Hon. George D. Roberts and S. B. White, of New York, Hon. John B. Alley and Ex-Collector Beard, of Boston, and General Foster, of Ohio, who with his friends hold a large block of the stock. The lines are to be operated with Gray's patents. It is to be known as the Postal telegraph company. Material reductions in telegraph tolls are promised. Seven hundred thousand dollars have been already paid in for preliminaries.

Guiteau's Only Hope.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Charles H. Reed, in company with a notary public, visited the jail Friday to secure Guiteau's signature to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, returnable before a justice of the United States supreme court. It is believed that Justice Miller will be asked to pass upon the writ, as he is expected to arrive in this city next week and will be the only member of the supreme court then in Washington. After an attentive reading of the petition Guiteau signed it, remarking that it would be of no service, as the case was closed, in his opinion, and he added that his only hope lay in the president's intercession. Mr. Reed explained that it was nesessary to first exhaust every legal resource. These proceedings will probably be begun in the early part of this week.

Loss of Life.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 11.—7 p. m.—Serious riots have broken out between the hostile natives and Europeans, during which several persons were killed and wounded and a number of houses destroyed. The police at first remained inactive. The riotous demonstrations took place before the French consulate, to which several of those mortally wounded at the outbreak of the riots had been conveyed. The disturbances continued some time before the authorities took any steps to suppress them. The English consul was severely hurt, receiving a gunshot wound. An engineer of the British man-of-war Superb was killed. The disturbances continued five hours, when the military dispersed the rioters.

Fire.

HARTFORD, June 11.—A fire broke out in White, Carbin & Co.'s envelope works at Rockville, Conn., (formerly known as the "Florence mill"), at 2 o'clock Saturday morning, which destroyed the upper story together with the roof. The mill was a four-story brick structure, 100 feet long. About two hundred and fifty hands were employed. The damage, which is heavy, is rather from water than from fire, the lower stories being flooded. The loss is estimated at $100,000; insured for $50,000.

Vessel Wrecked.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, June 12.—A dispatch from Cape Race says that portions of a ship's longboat were picked up near there yesterday. On Saturday evening, during a thick fog, three shrill blasts of a steamer's whistle were heard in the vicinity of Shinglehead, near where the wreck of the boat was discovered. A searching party has been sent out.

Short Telegrams.

LONDON, June 8.—Foxhall won the Ascot gold cup; Faugh-a-Ballagah, second, Petronel, third. Only three ran.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 9.—The democratic state central committee have decided to have a state convention at Columbus on July 20.

POWHATTAN, Va., June 9.—Armstrong Gray, colored, was hanged today for the murder of Lincoln Gray, his own son, a lad of 14 years.

READING, Pa., June 8.—About one hundred men employed in the tube mill of the Reading iron works quit to-day, being dissatisfied with a notice which was posted in the mill by the management in reference to certain men.

CAIRO, June 8.—The Turkish mission comprises fifty-eight persons. It it is understood the leaders of the military party intend to apply to Dervisch Pascha to effect a reconciliation between themselves and the khedive.

ST. LOUIS, June 8.—The Goodwin soap and oil works, on Poplar street, west of Nineteenth street, were damaged by fire about midnight to the amount of $50,000. A good deal of manufactured stock was destroyed and much of the machinery badly damaged. Insurance, $100,000.

LONDON, June 9.—Bourke, who was assassinated yesterday, recently informed the authorities that he knew he would be shot. When the news of Bourke's murder reached London his brother went into the lobby of the House of Commons and accused Parnell and Biggar with being the cause thereof.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 9.—At a meeting of ministers and elders of the Society of Friends to-day the state of the church was inquired into. Among the ministers present were James R. Jones, of North Carolina; Yeander Warner, of Tennessee, and Agnes R. Bryson, of England. The meeting was largely attended.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—The following poetical effusions are from the pen of a correspondent at Spring Mills:

LINES ON THE DEATH OF AN ONLY BROTHER.

My only brother now is gone,
And I am left here all alone;
No sisters who with me might weep
For my dear brother who's asleep.

Oh, home is drear, not half so sweet!
As when I could my brother greet;
And oft do I the scenes recall
When he was happy with us all.

Yes, spring has come with its warm breeze,
The birds are singing on al the trees,
The flowers will soon unfolded be,
But yet this does not comfort me.

Oh where shall I now solace find,
Since fate to me was so unkind
To take away my loving brother,
And leave me only to my mother.

In God, my child, who doth things well,
And cares for us wherever we may dwell,
Who holds the world in His right hand,
And mounts or sinks at his command.

GIFTS.

Some one has said, perhaps you know who,
That "Rich gifts wax poor when friends prove untrue."
If this so be true, which it surely must be,
It plainly then teaches both you and me
That 'tis not the gift, be it great or small,
Which a grateful remembrance receives at all;
'Tis only when given by friends that are true
Who never prove false but e'er cling to you,
That gifts are remembered and held most dear,
As a precious and sacred souvenir.

—Mr. Ferdinand Beezer, proprietor of Beezer's distillery about two miles from Bellefonte, was in town on Saturday looking very proud and happy His elevated eyes did not seem to rest on sublunary things, but soared far away over the tops of the houses. Reason: Mrs. Beezer presented him with a fine girl baby last Thursday afternoon.

—The regular quarterly meeting of the Society of Friends, which has been in progress in this place for several days, ended Monday. Mrs. Julia Valentine, of Philadelphia, and Miss Mary Thomas, of Baltimore, distinguished members of the Society, have been in attendance and delivered edifying and instructive discourses.

—Valentines & Co. are constantly receiving new goods which they are selling as low as some goods can be bought in Philadelphia. At this large emporium of trade everything can be found which the people need to eat, drink or wear. The most gentlemanly clerks are constantly in attendance upon customers. Adventure with a Rat.

We have read of rats crawling up a man's nether extremities between his trousers and skin, but failed to perceive how such an event could occur and the man escape alive. A rat at liberty to bite when he chooses is a fearful object to contemplate even at a distance. If he attempts to approach he takes on all the forms and terrors of the king of beasts. It is horrible to think of him jumping on you, even if it be outside your clothing; but to our mind the extent of human terror is attained when this fearful, fast-moving quadruped gains access beneath your clothing. Then does the flesh creep and the blood run cold with horror, when you reflect that the animal's only means of escape is to eat his way out through the clothing or in through the—ugh! But to proceed:

It was in the press room of this office between the hours of four and five o'clock p. m. of Friday afternoon. Mr. Jacob Snyder, of Eagleville, was watching the Friday's edition revolving through the press, and Mr. A. B. Steele, solicitor and collector, was explaining the modus operandi of the intricate proceeding. Suddenly Mr. Steele felt something touch the heel of his right foot and looked at his companion for an explanation. Next he felt a creeping sensation in the region of his ankle and realizing that it was a rat, he struck the place a sharp, hollow, reverberating blow with his fist. This drove the horrid creature further up as if it meant to reach the clouds. Taking a circular course, it passed through the acute angle between the limbs and over the fleshy portion just above. Mr. Steele became painfully cognizant that the situation was desperate, and to the surprise of all, who knew not his awkward and disagreeable predicament, he began to belabor the place with might and main. The rat neither moved nor squealed, but dropped with a cold, lifeless thud to the floor; and as the exclamation "Oh!" ascended from all the spectators, the desperate circumstances were realized. The rat was an old fellow with big teeth, and that he did not bite Mr. Steele severely is, to say the the least, surprising. Throughout the tragic occurrence both Mr. S. and the rat were as cool, calm and collected as two cucumbers on a dewy morning, or two icebergs in May of 1882.

He Found the Place.

A promising and enterprising young man in the vicinity of Bellefonte being about to propose to — his — affiancee, was greatly embarassed on account of his clothes. Knowing that she was an admirer of a perfect fitting suit, which would show his well built form to advantage, he resolved to win her or die. So he started out to find a perfect fitting suit which he knew would win her. He searched every store, high and low, but to no avail—he could not be suited. His heart began to sink within him, when he was advised to go to the Boston Clothing House, just opened in Reynolds' Block, opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny street, Bellefonte, Pa. He went there at once, and had no trouble in finding a good fit which elated him so much that he at once started for his affianced to whom he proposed and was accepted. The sleeve of the new coat stole gently around her beautiful waist, the match was consummated the following Sunday, when "two hearts beat as one."

The Nation,

Since its consolidation with the New York Evening Post, has increased its facilities in every department, enlarged its size to twenty-four pages, and added many able writers to its previous list. It is now pronounced by many of its readers to be better than ever before.

Established in 1865, the Nation was a pioneer in this country as a weekly journal of literary and political criticism of the highest order, conducted free from the control of party or interest of any sort. Despite a precarious support during the first few years, it held persistently to its original aim until its financial success was assured. Meanwhile it had become a recognized authority at home and abroad; its editorial management has been unchanged from the first, and its projectors intend that, with their present facilities, the Nation shall become more than ever before the medium of the ablest thought of the time.

The form and style of the paper are chosen with a view to the most suitable shape for binding, and a set of the Nation, preserved, bound, and indexed, makes the most complete and readable record of current events of importance in the political and literary world available for the American public.

ROSS.—At Linden Hall, Pa., on the 21st of March, John David Earl, only son of Jas. M. and Lizzie M. Ross, aged 13 years, 10 months and 7 days.

The death of this promising and dearly loved boy has awakened a wide feeling of sympathy and sorrow.

On March 22d this message reached a quiet home in a beautiful southern city: "Our dear boy Earl is dead." How brief the word, but oh, what fellings of sorrow and regret unspeakable chilled our hearts, and almost caused them to stop with its suddenness. How different from ordinary telegrams. "Our dear boy." Clearly the wail of hearts, almost broken with the stroke, the breathings of souls, such as are tried, as it were, by fire. Yet, when we look calmly into the closing scenes of this loved one's life, we are able to draw from them much of comfort.

March 16th he came home from school complaining of a severe pain in his bowels. Simple remedies were administered with apparently good results for a day or two. Soon it was noticed that the complaint was assuming a serious form, and he was then placed under treatment of skillful physicians. He had the close attention of friends and neighbors; the tender care given him in his home could not keep him in life and youthful strength, and vigor faded away at the touch of the destroyer. All was unavailing, and in the midst of the strongest expressions of kindness he "fell asleep," leaving behind him a saddened household, where the affections of all centered upon him, and where his image will abide enshrined in sorrowful memories.

As to his life and characteristics, studious almost to a fault, of praiseworthy temperament, not refractory, very diligent, and had now become almost a "prop" to his loving parents from a child disposed to obedience, social and entertaining in his intercourse with young and old; but notwithstanding all these desirable virtues, he felt that life without a Saviour was a failure. So he considered the command "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth," and committed himself to the care of "Jesus the Christ." His composure in sickness and death was remarkable; while he suffered exceedingly, yet he was tranquil and fearless, often speaking of his faith in God, adding words of comfort to his sore stricken parents. His own words were: "I am willing to die if it is the Lord's will, basing all my hopes on His promises," and so he died happy, his last sign of recognition signifying this.

Side by side he and darling "Mamie" sleep, awaiting the glad summons of their King to "Arise and shine." Yet what a shadow has fallen over "Hazell Dell," their once happy home. Doubtless, like David, the bereaved ones cry: "The troubles of my heart are enlarged; bring thou me out of my distress," and quickly back comes the reply: "The Lord is a very present help in every time of trouble." Then beloved, take comfort. "I, even I, Jehovah-Jirah, am he that speaketh."

HEBREWS 12:11.

Not now, but "afterward" will be revealed
The precious fruits of peace and righteousness.
The bud, the flower, in God's hand lie concealed,
The hand that smites and chastens but to bless.
And while beneath the storm we bow the trembling head,
The stricken heart is dumb, and every hope seems dead.
E'en then is ripening, 'mid chilling darkness drear,
The sweet fruit we shall gather, but not now, not here!

JOHN 13.7.

Not now, hereafter only shall we understand
Those things which now we gaze on in surprise,
Mysterious dealings of His mighty hand,
Which to our feeble and sin-blinded eyes
Seem passing strange, oft hard, and oft call forth the cry,
"What doest thou, O Master? Why is this, and why
May I not understand?" While Jesus whispers low:
"To-day, trust me, my child—hereafter thou shalt know."

—We do not know what grocers may be losing customers, but it is certain that Harry Teats & Co. are gaining them very rapidly.

—We are told that "Old Mother Hubbard, she went to the cupboard to get her poor dog a bone; and when she got there the cupboard was bare, and so the poor dog had none.'" We may glean from this beautiful but sad story many lessons; suffice it for us to apply them, to study them as far as in us lies, and, bearing in mind the natural frailty of our natures, to avoid being widows; to avoid the patronymic of Hubbard; to have, if our means afford it, more than one cupboard in our house, and to keep stores in them all. Should we, like this poor widow, ever be left with a hungry dog and an empty cupboard, may future chroniclers be able to write of us, not the beautiful words of the rhyme: "And so the poor dog had none," but the expressive and inspiring words: "He went to Sechler's store and bought a roast of beef, sufficient for himself and all his domestic animals. He also stopped in the grocery department where he made a selection of a large quantity of the best groceries the store affords. Never, while in such close proximity to Sechler's store, will he allow his cupboard to be bare."

—Many people have looked in vain for good strong stockings for boys and girls. Where they found strength they were in common colors, and had great welts and seams in them. Valentines & Co's. store has met the difficulty squarely and offer a strong stocking, beautifully made, without seams, in handsome colors. They also carry a full line of hosiery for all ages and at all prices.

—Peruna will make your blood pure and healthy.

—Perhaps no profession is replenished with larger numbers of new accessions every year than that of medicine. It is quite astounding to read the long list of M. D.'s who are turned out by the colleges to prey upon the vitals of the community. We read that over two thousand physicians, each possessing diplomas testifying to competency, are registered in this state, besides the almost equally large number of quacks who eke out a living on ignorance and superstition. Why is this great army of physicians necessary? It is largely because of imprudence. Surroundings and habits may be all right, but many persons eat the wrong articles and in quantities altogether too large. Groceries of the best quality and of the exact kind desired can be purchased of Sechler, where all our readers should go when they come to town. Sechler has had long experience and is naturally fitted for his business, and he knows the best place to buy the best goods. He has long been famous for the neat, tidy appearance of his store. He keeps competent assistants, having recently added to his already large number of clerks. In short, his store is one of the most attractive in this vicinity, and the person who goes once is certain to repeat the call.

That Dog Story.

There are two sides to every story and "every dog has his day," and we were informed by Mr. Wm. B. Miles, of Milesburg, who called at our office on Tuesday, that the story recently published in these columns regarding the attack of his dogs upon a little child of Mr. C. H. Else is almost entirely incorrect. He says that all the animals alluded to are pups, the smaller ones weighing only about a pound; that one of the smaller ones had a bone, and the child in passing struck at it; that the larger dog might have sprang on the child and knocked her down once, but did not do so more than once; that the child ran and reached the gate in safety; and, lastly, that Mrs. Else did not witness the scene at all. As in all such cases there is a decided conflict of opinion between the opposite parties.

—The college boy who sang, "I've smoked my last cigar," did not buy it of Harry Green.

It is Said—

That the cessation of business operations at the car works would be a calamity to Bellefonte.

That there will be a long period of dry weather before the summer and fall are over.

That Lawrence Brown must expect a continuance of cold weather judging by the way he is increasing the dimensions of his coal sheds.

That the wedding "boom," so promisingly inaugurated this spring, will continue all summer.

That two weddings and a concert, such as took place last evening, are altogether too much for a small town like Bellefonte.

That the Nail Works Company (limited) is in constant operation with no intentions of stopping again until all the members of the firm become millionaires.

—The victory of the College base ball nine over their opponents of the Lewisburg University, last Friday at Williamsport, is a cause of much congratulation to them as the challenge to play was given by the latter club. There was some dissatisfaction regarding the circumstances of the victory in the foot ball contest some time ago, but no complaint can be made in the present instance and it must be accepted by all parties as a fair victory.

—Regular and Independent Republicans, Democrats, Greenbackers and Prohibitionists purchase their groceries at Sechler's store.

—An ice cream festival will be held in the Presbyterian church of Port Matilda, Centre county, Pa., on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 17, 1882, the proceeds to be used for the benefit of the church. The public generally are invited to attend. We hope the enterprise will meet with much success.

—The large number of cigars smoked in Bellefonte is due to the fact that Harry Green supplies such an excellent article.

—A new post-office has been established at Farmer's Mills, this county, J. S. Anman, postmaster, and Mrs. Sophia McEwen has been appointed postmistress of the office at Hublersburg.

—Trunks and satchels in all grades and lowest prices at Valentines & Co.'s store.

—The Bush House has entertained a large number of guests during the past two days.

—Rocher clothing for men, youths' and boys, at prices to meet the times. Come and see it at Valentines & Co's. store.

—A new iron fence has arrived to be placed in position in front of the Centre County Bank building.

—Nervous Headache, Periodical Headache, Neuralgic Headache, are cured by Dr. Mettaur's Headache and Dyspepsia Pills. Price 25 cts.

—Mrs. Watson died on Sunday at her residence in Snow Shoe. She was buried at one o'clock on Monday.

Now is the time to buy in what stock of dress goods, clothing, boots and shoes, etc., you need for this coming year, as Lyon Co. are closing out their stock at cost. The goods must be sold and prices will be slaughtered.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossom, etc., fragrant with the healing essence of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

—"How do you manage," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic handy," was the reply, "and thus keep myself and family in good health and spirits." See adv.

Frank Blair has just opened another fine lot of solid silver ware, from the Gorham Co., which are put up in handsome satin cases. These goods, in connection with his stock of superior silver-plated ware, where the finest display of silver ware ever exhibited in town. As he is the agent for the Gorham Co., he sells at the factory retail prices. d-w-t-f.

Lay aside your old winter hat and don one suitable for summer wear. It will not cost much and will be vastly more comfortable. Valentines' store is the place to buy them. They have a large and elegant stock at very reasonable prices, including all kinds of summer hats, among which are some very pretty light and colored straws. The tastes of every customer may be satisfied. m26-d3t&w3t.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and C. N. Crittenton, New York. 14 24 1y

Spring and Summer, 1882.

Grand Display of an Entire New Stock of Goods at Prices that defy competition.

There having been such an unsettled feeling among Importers and Manufacturers of late, we have been especially exacting in the purchase of our NEW STOCK.

Having been connected with a large wholesale business for many years in New York gives us an advantage over many others in the purchase of goods.

Having watched with an eagle eye every opportunity, and whenever a concession has been offered, we have taken advantage of it and pitched in.

By marking every article in plain figures and at uniform percentage above cost, our customers always derive the benefit of every bargain that we obtain.

Every Department is now Complete.

DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS,
SILKS, AND DOMESTICS.

Hosiery, Notions and Trimmings, Linens, White Goods and Laces, Worsted and Embroideries, Shoes, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Mattings,

Save Money When You Can!

ANY ONE CAN SAVE IT BY FOLLOWING THE ADVICE BELOW.

GROCERIES.

We are selling all classes of Groceries at prices below any grocery store in Bellefonte, showing a saving of 3 cents per pound on as staple an article as Coffee; 10 cents on Syrups; 2 cents on Bacon; from 10 to 25 cents per bushel on Potatoes; a few cents on every article of everyday consumption that goes into the house. Produce we always sell at same prices which we pay for it, thereby saving the consumer an extra profit that is always charged by exclusive grocery stores.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

We are selling all kinds of Boots and Shoes in wonderfully large variety and extra good quality, at prices far below any exclusive shoe store in Centre County. Quality guaranteed as good as can be made, and prices speak for themselves.

CLOTHING.

We are selling all sizes of Men's, Youth's, Boys' and Children's Clothing at an enormous saving on any exclusive clothing store, guaranteeing linings, trimmings and workmanship superior to any other ready-made Clothing sold in this county, and equal to any custom-made work. Patches are furnished with all children's suits. We make a specialty of the celebrated Stein, Adler & Co.'s manufacture, of Rochester, which is conceded by all to be the best in the United States.

CARPETS.

We are selling all grades of Carpets, ranging from the cheapest to the best, at lower prices than any store in Bellefonte, and have the largest variety to be found in the County, which has only to be seen to be verified. Carpets cut, fit, made and laid down in your houses on short notice.

DRY GOODS.

In Dry Goods we are determined not to be undersold, and have an exceedingly large stock, comprising everything in the line that the name implies. Dress Goods in every new shape out, Muslins, Calicos, Linens, House Furnishing Goods, in fact anything and everything, bought right and offered right.

NOTIONS.

In Notions and Trimmings our stock is full of novelties, at the very lowest prices.

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Hats, Caps, Shirts, Suspenders, Collars, Cuffs, Hosiery, etc. Just call and convince yourselves. Room won't allow us to explain fully.

Why can we do all this? Simply because we deal in everything. We make a specialty of each department; neither one branch or the other of our ever increasing business need be largely profitable, but a very small margin in either sums up to satisfy us.

Jefferson's Remains.

RICHMOND, June 5.—R. T. W. Dake, attorney of the Randolph heirs, has written the following letter to the president of the Glenwood cemetery at Washington, in relation to the removal of the body of Thomas Jefferson from its present resting place:

"As legal adviser of the owner of he Monticello graveyard, I am intructed by them to inform you that hey will not allow Jefferson's remains to be removed to another cemetery. The said owners of the graveyard being the heirs of the late Thomas Jefferson Randolph, executor of Thomas Jefferson and residuary legatee of his mother, Mrs. Martha Jefferson Randolpb, who, jointly with him, signed the deed conveying Monticello to its purchasers, in which deed the graveyard is reserved and exempted from the sale, are, by the laws of Virginia, sole custodians of the remains of Jefferson, which they will under no circumstances allow to be removed from the spot which he himself selected as their last resting place. The publication of certain communications to your board, said to have been made by Jefferson's sole surviving grandchild, and your reported action thereon calls for this communication to you."

It is supposed that this action will put a stop to the agitation of the disinterment of the remains of Mr Jefferson. If it does not his heirs in this state will certainly adopt all the legal means in their power, which are believed to be adequate to accomplish that end, to prevent the dirturbance of Jefferson's body.

Mysterious Death.

MEADVILLE, Pa., June 6.—The body of Charles Travers, a well-known insurance agent, of Spartansburg, Crawford county, was found yesterday near the depot at Franklin, with two bullet holes in his left breast and a revolver at his side, with two empty chambers. While the first impression was that a foul murder had been committed, later developments incline to the theory of suicide. Travers was engaged to be married to Miss Mary Whitting, of Cochranton, whom he visited on Sunday last, departing on Monday morning for Oil City. The ceremony was to have been performed on Thursday evening, and on Tuesday the bride received a note from him, which was the last message until yesterday. Travers not appearing for the wedding, the bride-elect was prostrated with grief, and still remains in a critical condition. Travers was about 40 years of age and of reputable standing in the community. It is reported that he was addicted to the use of opium. This is taken as an evidence of suicide, while, on the contrary, it is asserted that he had woven a network around a gang of counterfeiters at Franklin as a private detective and by them was murdered.

The Reunion at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 7.—The reunion of the officers of the Union and Confederate armies on the battlefield of Gettysburg for the purpose of locating more definitely the positions of the various commands commenced here to-day. Special attention was given to-day to the scene of the second day's fight. Veterans from all parts of the country were upon the field, as was also Mr. Bachelder, the historian. Among more prominent officers present were General Daniel E. Sickles and General S. W. Crawford. At a reception tendered the Union and Confederate veterans this evening speeches of a humorous and conciliatory nature were made by all the prominent visitors. The meeting has been one of the most pleasant ever held here. General Beaver arrived this evening and was present at the reception.

Commencement.

OXFORD, Pa., June 6.—The fourteenth commencement of the Lincoln university colored students took place to-day. Eleven students graduated in the collegiate and eight in the theological departments. Some of the graduates are residents of Africa. Among the prominent persons present were General Beaver, who made a short address; David E. Small, Esq., Dr. H. E. Niles, Professor Hirges, York, Pa; Rev. James Chester, of Cincinnati, and several prominent Chester countians. The exercises were highly interesting, able essays being delivered by the graduates.

Aquatic News.

TORONTO, June 7.—Wallace Ross passed through on the way to Winnipeg. An additional five hundred dollars was deposited for the race with Hanlan. Ross would give no definite information as to the postponement of the race, owing to Hanlan's illness, but said he would do the right thing.

Serious Fire.

CINCINNATI, June 7.—Twenty frame dwellings, occupied by families, on Crown and Ravine streets, up the Mill Creek Valley, were burned this forenoon. One child was burned to death. Twenty-five families are homeless, and all their effects in ashes. The loss will not be less than $25,000.

Oregon Elections.

PORTLAND, Oregon, June 7.—There seems to be no doubt in regard to the election of George to congress by a majority not less than two thousand. The republicans claim the entire state by majorities ranging from 700 to 1,800 The democrats concede it to the republicans by small majorities. The lines to Eastern Oregon have been drawn for two days, and no precinct east of the Cascade mountains having been heard from, the legislature is doubtful, Eastern Oregon has had a large emigration in the past two years, and it is believed to be mostly republican. The legislature will be close either way, and its composition cannot be known for two or three days.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—A Portland, Oregon, dispatch says returns from the election up to noon to day show that the legislature stands as follows: Of the senate, which consists of thirty members, the republicans have, including "hold over," fifteen and the democrats fourteen members, one being doubtful with probabilities in favor of the republicans. In the house, which consists of sixty members, the republicans have thirty and the democrats twenty four; doubtful six, of which two are probably republican. Granting to the democrats every doubtful district the legislature will be a tie on a joint ballot. The republicans, however, claim the legislature by at least four on a joint ballot. The democrats are inclined to concede that it will be a tie.

Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, June 7.—The rumor was current some days since that a general meeting of the iron manufacturers was to be held in this city for the purpose of considering the situation. The report was denied, but it transpired this morning that the members of the Nail association had called a special meeting, and that it was held at the rooms on Fourth avenue. It has been stated that the nail makers have been interfered with by the lockout of the iron workers, and it was understood that some of the firms have been compelled to purchase from outside parties in order to supply contracts. The utmost secrecy was observed in regard to the meeting, and it is even asserted that parties who have usually represented firms at the stated meetings, and consequently became well known, had other members of their respective firms attend, so that they would not be recognized by representatives of the newspapers. The intimation is that there was a somewhat critical and protracted discussion on the situation, and that the break in Wheeling and the threatened break at other points, so far as the manufacture of nails is concerned, were matters of solicitude Previous to the meeting no person would give any information as the object, and no satisfaction could be obtained afterward.

A Horrible Crime.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—A dispatch from Cairo, Ill., this morning says: J. W. Bayles, a farmer, between 50 and 60 years of age, living about three and a half miles from Vienna, Ill., on the Wabash railroad, was murdered. It seems he had been sitting by a small lamp reading when the assassins entered and tied him to the chair in which he was sitting, and then they tied his hands behind him and his feet together. When found his feet were burned to a crisp by the lamp being held under them. They then split his head with an ax and searched the house. When through they cut the bridle with which he was bound to the chair and shoved him over on the floor, where he was found by the neighbors dead. No clue to the assassins.

Thinks He Will Be Saved.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Guiteau received with outward composure the announcement of the failure of the last effort of his counsel to secure a rehearing of his case. He proceeded to denounce the court in banc as cowards and cranks and said God had revealed to him that he was to be taken care of. "God," he said "works through human agencies, and President Arthur is to be the agent to save me if necessary." Reed has not yet given up the case. He contemplates further action, but declines to announce its nature beforehand.

Terrible Explosion.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A San Antonio Texas, special says: A terrible explosion in tunnel No. 1, on the G. P. & P. railway extension, occurred yesterday—two hundred and fifty kegs of blasting powder were being touched off by the workmen on the east end of the extension. The workmen at the west end were at once overwhelmed with earth, rock and trees. Three were killed and five wounded.

Garibaldi.

CIVITA VECCHIA, Italy, June 7.—A telegram from Caprera announces that the family of General Garibaldi have decided to abandon the cremation of his body, owing to the practical difficulties in the way of its accomplishment. The remains will be interred, provisionally, at least, at Caprera on Thursday.

She was talking on the cars, and said: "The meanest people are those who peep out of windows to see what their neighbors are doing. Now, this morning I was looking through the blind of my window, and what do you suppose I saw that mean Mrs. Jones doing? Why she was peeping through her blinds to see if I saw her, the mean woman.'

Delicate Females.

The exactions of society, added to the cares of maternity and the household, have tested beyond endurance the frail constitutions which have been granted the majority of women. To combat this tendency to premature decline, no remedy in the world possesses the nourishing and strengthening properties of Malt Bitters. They enrich the blood, perfect digestion, stimulate the liver and kidneys, arrest ulcerative weaknesses, and purify and vitalize every function of the female system.

TESTED AND FOUND WORTHY.

In order to bring more fully before the notice of the people the value of a true and tried remedy, we give the following reliable testimonial from one of the many who have been cured, and whose reputation for veracity cannot be questioned.

WOODBURY, N. J., March 20, 1882.

SWEDISH BITTERS CO.:

GENTLEMEN.—I have suffered with dyspepsia and its horrible effects for many years. Have spent hundreds of dollars with physicians and in patent medicines, with no avail. I have been unable to eat meats of any kind, and could not retain water on my stomach, and was unable to sleep at night. I was induced to procure and try a bottle of your Swedish Bitters, and can conscientiously say that its use was followed by beneficial results. I can now sit down and enjoy a hearty meal of meats and vegetables of any kind and have gained sixteen pounds in three weeks and can cordially recommend it to others.

Yours respectfully,

AUGUSTUS PREHL,

Prop'r of Woodbury City Coach Line, Prehl's Livery and Accommodation Stables.

Too Much Weather.

Pennsylvanians have good reason to distrust everything having its source in New Jersey, therefore a sensation of pleasure thrills our being when we contemplate the fact that A. J. Devoe, one of the fellows whose prophesies have ruined the weather of A. D. 1882, resides in the water melon and sea-side resort State. In the face of the execrable weather which has already tormented us he dares to utter the following prophesy: "The warmest days will occur about the 4th, 12th, 27th and 30th." How happy we are over the fact that yesterday and to-day were warmer than Sunday (the 4th) as it knocks the pegs from under this Devoe's owlish prediction. But he continues his predictions for June by saying: About the 12th it will be very close to frost. Although wet weather is not very pleasant, yet it is a good thing for the consumers of vegetables; for an unusually large quantity of peas have been sown this season, and about the 4th of July they they will be sold for 25 cents per bushel. And those who will sow peas the 1st of June will get a much better price than for what were sown in March. It will be a very poor season for melons. The blossoms will be drowned with cold rains. Strawberries will be very large; also very sour. Tourists seeking pleasure and recreation will do well to give the sea shore a wide berth and get inland as far as possible until the middle of July. The Coney Island company and all other companies along the seacoast will be money out this month. There will not be ten clear days during the month. The heaviest storms will occur over the south Atlantic states, and they will occur one day earlier than the dates which I have given for this section. Don't pack your overcoats away.

Death's Doings.

Wednesday the lifeless body of a little eight-year-old boy was brought to this place on the train. He was the son of Mr. Thomas McCoy, of Houtzdale, and was run over by the cars on Monday while carrying his father's dinner to him. His body, was brought to this place to be conveyed to Penns Valley where it was interred in the Spruce Town Cemetery.

Our esteemed fellow-townsman Captain W. W. Potter, received a telegram Wednesday announcing the death of his step-mother, Mrs. Susan Potter, which occurred on Tuesday night, the 6th, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Crone, of Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Potter was formerly a resident of Centre county and is well known by all the older citizens. She had reached the venerable age of 81 years. The interment took place at Madison, Indiana.

"Cream."

Of course the forthcoming festival of the Y. M. C. A. will be the creme de la creme of such affairs, buf what we desire to call attention to at the present writing is that genuine cream will be the most difficult article to secure, and all persons having a superfluous quantity at their disposal are requested to give either Wilbur Harris, of the postoffice; Eddie Richards, at F. P. Richards' jewelry store, or Walter Bayard, of F. P. Green's drug store, notice that they are willing to donate it to the festival, which will be held on the evenings of Thursday' Friday and Saturday of next week. Freezers of ice cream will also be very acceptable. Cakes and other necessary articles will be secured in great abundance as we know of one gentleman who already has twenty-three promised. Our readers are respectfully urged not to forget the cream.

The flames were extinguished with much difficulty. We are not informed as to the extent of Mr. Reifsnyder's loss, but believe it was small. The house was fully insured.

The Gettysburg Encampment.

HEADQUARTERS DEPT. OF PENNA.
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC,
PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1882.

General Orders No. 10.

I. This department will go into camp under canvas upon the battlefield of Gettysburg from Saturday, July 22, to Saturday, July 29.

II. The camp will be located as heretofore, upon East Cemetery hill, from which can be had a view of nearly the entire battlefield and of the surrounding country for miles in every direction.

III. The famous Weccacoe band, of Philadelphia, will be in attendance during the entire week. Colonel Bachelder, the historian of the battle, who has given years of faithful study to the subject, will be present and will daily explain the positions and movements of the troops during the engagement.

IV. Tents will be provided and in readiness for the comrades upon their arrival. Each post is requested to bring their post flags and guidons to mark their location in the camp. Each comrade should provide himself with blankets, towels, etc.

V. Subsistence, without lodging, at private houses, will be 75 cents per day, and should be engaged through Comrade N. G. Wilson, of Gettysburg, with whom comrades should at once communicate, in order to avoid confusion. Accommodation in the town can also be secured for ladies.

VI. The following extremely low rates of transportation have been secured, but to obtain them orders for tickets must be procured from headquarters not later than July 18, and the tickets must be purchased in packages of 25 or more at one time. If less than 25 tickets are bought at one time the rate will be double that given below. When there are less than 25 going from any post they should arrange with neighboring posts to make up the required number, and designate some one to purchase the tickets. The rates to Gettysburg and return for twenty-five or more will be as follows:

From Huntingdon	$3 30
From Tyrone	3 70
From Bellefonte	4 36
From Altoona	3 98
From Johnstown	4 74

These rates are over the Pennsylvania railroad and its branches.

VIII. As accommodations will only be provided for those for whom they have been engaged, commanders of posts will readily see the necessity of reporting to these headquarters without delay, the probable number by comrades who will attend the encampment, thus saving confusion and disappointment. As the coming encampment promises to be the largest yet held, prompt compliance with this request is essential to the comfort of all comrades participating.

IX. A number of tablets will be erected by posts and regimental associations to designate the location of regiments or the spot where some officer fell and in each case the ceremonies will be very impressive and interesting, adding very materially to the week's pleasure and enjoyment The battlefield association have opened a wide avenue on the field, following the line of battle from the Baltimore pike to Round Top, and will have the position of every Pennsylvania regiment engaged in the battle properly designated by the time of the encampment.

By command of
J. M. VANDERSLICE,
Department Commander.
THOMAS J. STEWART,
Assistant Adjutant General.

Decoration Day in a Small Village.

The following welcome communication is cheerfully given space in our columns with a regret that it did not arrive earlier:

SPRUCE TOWN, June 2, 1882.

Mr. Editor: Will you please allow space in your columns and publish the proceedings on Decoration Day in this place? This is but a country place and as a matter of course, one could not expect great military pomp or martial display. However the occasion was solemnly observed by the community generally.

At 6 o'clock p. m. the ceremonies, which were fittingly appropriate, began. There were not quite as many represented as on some previous occasions. Yet the interest manifested would convince that the fires of patriotism are still burning in the hearts of those who love their country and revere and honor those who fought and gave their lives for a just cause. After being marshaled to the cemetery the performances began by the offering of a very solemn and impressive prayer by Mr. J. G. Carson, after which a very appropriate piece entitled, "The Soldier's Memorial Ode" was sung. Mr. Michael Shires then read a poem entitled "Cover them Over." The eloquent manner in which it was rendered combined with the living sentiment it contained, stirred the pulse of the spirit of patriotism in all who were present. Another suitable piece was then sung during which the graves of the heroic and patriotic dead (of which there are some nineteen or twenty) were decked with a profusion of bouquets, wreaths and crosses, made of flowers and evergreens and presented by the ladies. All joined in singing the "Sweet Bye and Bye" and then retired.

Trusting that Decoration Day may always be observed by the people here. I am,

Yours respectfully,
J. M. S.

—A large party of prominent mining and railroad officials arrived at the Intersection last Wednesday and thence proceeded to Snow Shoe.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of Boalsburg Lodge, No. 894, I. O. of O. F., held June 3, 1882, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, Death has entered our order and has cut down in the midst of a life of usefulness Brother Edwin W. Hess; and

WHEREAS, It is proper that we, as fellow laborers of the departed, publicly express our sentiments upon the melancholy occasion; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the decease of Brother Hess our community has lost one of its most enterprising citizens; our lodge one of its faithful members; one who was to the parents a beloved son and to his family a tender loving husband and father.

That while we deplore the untimely death of our Brother, called from earth in the prime of his years; while we mourn the loss to his country, his family and his friends, we sorrow not as those without hope, but realize that he has only preceded us a little while in his journey to that country from whose bourne no traveler returns.

That we extend to the grief-stricken family of our late Brother our most earnest sympathy in their hour of affliction.

That the charter of this Lodge be draped in black and the members wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That these proceedings be entered upon the minutes of our Lodge, and published in four county papers, and a copy of the same sent to the family of our deceased Brother.

The Vicissitudes of an Umbrella Mender.

A poor fellow armed with a half-dozen umbrella handles was in town Wednesday and in the course of his perambulations visited too many places where the ardent is disposed of and fell under its exhilarating influence. He drifted by slow degrees into a rollicking mood and pointed one of his umbrella handles, shaped like a pistol, at some children who were passing. This frightened the youngsters and they ran away crying at the top of their voices. Considering him a nuisance, the authorities arrested him and put him in the cooler, where he remained until some of his exuberant feelings had passed away, when as the shades of twilight crept down from the western hills he was permitted to depart in peace on condition of leaving the town within two hours and not returning.

Forster-Grey.

A brilliant wedding occurred Wednesday at the residence of George S. Grey, Esq., on Buffalo Run, at which time Mr. Grey's daughter, Miss Agnes Grey, was married to Rev. W. K. Forster, of Centre Hall. Rev. Beyer, of the M. E. church, of Stormstown, performed the ceremony. The affair passed off very pleasantly. Mr. Wilbur Harris and Miss Nannie Harris, of this place, were among the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Forster came to town in the evening and are now at the Bush House, intending to return to Centre Hall to-day.

—A cow belonging to a very excellent gentleman of this place broke loose Wednesday and ran wildly into the streets on sport and mischief bent. She looked very terrible as she rushed forth with magnificent strides and tossing her head, from which a long thick rope was hanging. First she encountered a company of boys and went for them causing them to scatter in all directions. Then she met her owner and unceremoniously attempted to make mincemeat of him, without success. We suppose she was captured as we have not heard of anyone being tossed into cloudland or pierced through and through by her mighty horns.

—The monthly sociable of the M. E. church was held Tuesday evening in Sabbath-school room of the church building. We were not able to be present, but learn that the attendance was very large and the exercises of an interesting character. Among them was the reading of a selection by Miss Beckie McGinley, which she did in superb style. She has an excellent voice and an impressive manner and the audience listened with rapt attention, it being considered the literary success of the entertainment. All the ice cream provided for the occasion was consumed. Col. D. H. Hastings did not read his promised essay, and will have another month in which to complete its preparation.

—At a meeting of the committee on the festival for the Y. M. C. A., held in the rooms of the Association on Tuesday evening, it was definitely decided to hold the festival on the evenings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 15, 16 and 17. Our citizens will receive further notification of this fact through the various sub-committees who will call on them to secure the necessary aid in prosecuting their work.

If you have the least uneasiness in your stomach Peruna will immediately correct the function.

I have just received the Largest, Finest, and in every way the Best Stock of ever offered in this town. I can show you ware heavier in the metal, finer in the finish, with more weight of silver to the square inch than you ever saw before. I am now buying nothing less than which is a grade heavier than any other. But one of the most important items relating to these goods is the price I can sell them at. Taking the exclusive sale of them in this county enables me to buy large quantities. Large quantities entitles me to the lowest prices and largest rebates. Giving you these advantages enables you to buy these fine goods, never higher, and sometimes lower than the most common goods which are entitled to be called silverware.

Silver Ware

QUADRUPLE PLATE,

Local Department.

—Genuine summer weather seems to be here.

—No one can find any fault with the weather at present.

—It's our opinion that two weddings are on the tapis for this week.

—The next "piano fund" concert will be held on Thursday evening, the 29th instant.

—The Sunday-schools of Altoona hold literary sociables modeled after those in Bellefonte.

—Brown, on Bishop street, sold 120 quarts of strawberries in about one hour last Saturday morning.

—That capitalist who was to purchase the car works has not yet put in appearance. At $35,000 it is a great bargain.

—Miss Laura Keller, Lock Haven's accomplished elocutionist, has accepted an engagement to read in Canisteo, N. Y.

—Rev. Samuel M. Roeder, of Centre Hall, preached twice in Immanuel's Reformed church, Williamsport, on Sunday.

—Young America is already giving vent to his patriotism. The report of the festive firecracker is heard in the land, especially in the vicinity of the Diamond.

—The private car of General Manager Baldwin, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was attached to the 10 o'clock train Saturday morning. It was occupied by himself and family.

—The Bellefonte REPUBLICAN intimates that Spring Mills is the centre of the State. But what is the centre of the universe? Guess Bellefonte—until election day.—Millheim Journal.

—The operation of blowing glass continues to attract many persons to witness it. On Wednesday evening quite a large number of interested spectators assembled in the building.

—Several members of the State College base ball nine tarried in Bellefonte Friday morning on their way to Williamsport where they will play the Lewisburg University nine this afternoon.

—A large company of ladies met in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday evening to assist in picking spruce and other work tending to the ornamentation of the rooms for the festival next Thursday evening.

—At a meeting of the Clinton county Agricultural Society on Saturday Hon. L. A. Mackey, Hugh Brown, Esq., and Joel A. Herr were elected delegates to the annual meeting to elect trustees of the State College.

—Mr. Burchfield has purchased a very handsome delivery wagon for the use of his new store. Like most of the fancy vehicles of this description, it was built by John Bartruff and his skillful corps of workmen.

—If all the members of the soliciting committee of the Y. M. C. A. festival have met with as much success as two of those whose memorandums we have consulted, it is probable that one hundred or more cakes will be contributed.

—"What a sweet creature!" exclaimed a charming Bishop street young lady Friday evening as she stooped to imprint a delicious kiss upon the damask cheek of a little child. Oh! how we did wish we were "a child again, just for a night."

—The "intelligent colored man" who frightened the would-be burglar, or bungler, from the house of Mr. Isaac Guggenheimer, last Tuesday morning, is receiving a wide advertisement throughout the State. It is now in order to nominate him for the Presidency.

—Mr. Aikens, of the firm of Bunnell & Aikens, music dealers, received a telegram on Monday announcing the death of his brother James A. Aikens, of Bellevue, near Cleveland, Ohio. He departed on the five p. m. train to attend the funeral which took place yesterday.

—We learn that Mrs. Houseal, the mother of Mrs. Krom, of Lock Haven, died at that place at 3 o'clock on Saturday morning last. We believe that the deceased lady was well known in Bellefonte. The remains were brought to this place Monday afternoon on the 5 o'clock train for interment.

—We are informed that on the same night of the attempted burglary of Mr. Isaac Guggenheimer's Linn street residence the house of Mr. S. Smith, in the rear of Daniel Rhoad's residence, was also entered, but nothing was taken. The house is unoccupied, although there is furniture in it.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The Exercises in the M. E. Church on Sunday a Great Success.

The annual recurrence of Children's Day—usually the second Sunday of June—is becoming an occasion of great interest in the M. E. church. Sunday every M. E. church in the Northern States observed the day with exercises of an fine character. It is designed as a joyful welcome to the beginning of the summer season and its rich gifts of rain, flowers, birds and fruits—the first mentioned being especially plentiful this year.

Reference to the lessons to the young which the day is intended to teach was made in all the church services, but the principal exercises took place in the afternoon at half-past two o'clock. The commodious auditorium of the church was filled with interested spectators The decorations of moss, ferns, spruce and flowers were beautifully designed and of an elaborate description. Differerent designs were made for it by those interested in its success and the most suitable accepted, Mr. Tate, the architect, giving the work the benefit of his skill.

A beautiful arch within which was a fine collection of flowers, a Maltese cross and the words "Welcome" and "Good Bye," produced a superb effect, while the chancel rail was covered by a bank of moss with a bunch of ferns rising from it at regular distances. Spruce was suspended from the railing around the choir and also from the gallery, with here and there a collection of flowers. The words "Welcome" and "Good Bye," above alluded to, were not presented to view until the exercises were in progress. Seven little girls took their places within the chancel at the opening of the service, each reciting a sentence beginning with the separate letters of the word "Welcome," and as each sentence was repeated the covering of white was removed. The same method was adoped just before the conclusion of the service to display the words "Good Bye." The prepared exercise for the occasion was based on the Song of Solomon, chapter 2, versus 11-13, and was of a responsive nature, the different sentences being recited by superintendent, teachers and scholars. Appropriate anthems and hymns interspersed the exercises and were well rendered. "April Rain," a recitation, was given by Bertie Williams; "Consider the Lilies," an anthem, by Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Stover and Messrs. Harry Schroyer and S. A Stover; "The Lily," also a recitation. by Emma Herkeimer; "Use of Flowers," a dialogue, by Ellie Williams and Fannie Twitmire; "The Sparrow," a recitation, by Morris Swartz; and "Flee as a Bird to your Mountain," a vocal solo, in a superb manner by S. A. Stover, of the firm of Harry Teats & Co.

The exercises throughout were very successful, the weather was matchless and all things combined to render the occasion one long to be remembered. All who took part in the arrangements, although so weary on Saturday night as to be almost unable to sleep, have reason to feel richly repaid for their untiring efforts.

—A somewhat absurd rumor is in circulation that the grocery store recently opened by our friend W. E. Burchfield in the new Centre County Bank building is operated by the bank officials. This story seems so ridiculous as to bear a contradiction on its face, but least some persons should be so gullible as to give it credence and be prejudiced against the store on that account, we are authorized by Mr. Burchfield, the proprietor, to contradict it. He rents from the Centre County Bank, but that is all the bank has to do with the store, and Mr. B. is abundantly capable to carry on his business successfully without any outside aid. The store is a perfect model of its kind and is conducted exclusively by Mr. W. E. Burchfield, one of the most popular men in Centre county. When you buy of him you get your money's worth of fresh groceries and that is all there is about it.

—The good ship Alaska, on which our townsman, Mr. James Milliken sailed for Europe, made the trip from Sandy Hook to Queenstown in the quickest time ever accomplished by any vessel going that distance, the time being 6 days, 22 hours and 10 minutes. That's skipping over the "briny" at a rather rapid rate, and reducing the importance of a European trip to the minimum. When it comes to sailing from the "States" to Europe in less than a week—well, we guess won't go, but will postpone our trip indefinitely.

—A party was given Thursday night by Major Wm. F. Reynolds in honor of his guests, Miss Nellie Reynolds and Miss Reingier, of Lancaster. The pleasure was prolonged until a late hour, or rather an early hour Friday morning.

SECRETARIES' CONVENTION.

An Interesting Letter from J. Willard Miller.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 8, 1882.

The twelfth annual conference of the Association of General Secretaries of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States and the Canadian provinces, assembled in this city last evening. After opening devotional exercises the delegates announced themselves, their location and position. Many secretaries believed the Bellefonte, Pa., secretary was to be congratulated on account of the field he occupied.

"Association History" formed the topic for discussion this morning, which was followed by "Association meetings for Public Effect."

Probably no subject was so carefully followed up by your secretary as "The secretary's relation to young men in his work showing fitness for the secretaryship," opened by Mr. W C. Douglass, of St. Louis.

A characteristic of the present conference is the casting aside of the time honored topics such as "How to reach young men," and the substitution of practical live ones such as those above given.

The different departments of the work, local, railroad, college, among colored young men, etc., will be noticed in coming sessions.

Over two hundred delegates are here, among whom are Taggart, Hall of New York, Munhall of Indiana. Taylor of Mass., Williams of Ohio, Brown of Ill., Louis of Wis., Folger of N. H., Brown of Me. In addition to these State secretaries many members of the International Committee are present, while San Francisco, Cal., Winnipeg, Manitoba, as well as Glasgow, Scotland, have sent their secretaries.

A spirit of earnest, business-like effort pervaded every session and in the light of former years' results, these following ones must make more important the work.

Twenty secretaries were employed in Association work twelve years ago; now there are two hundred and fifty-seven. Then the South had none; now nearly every southern, likewise western, city employs its secretary.

At the time of the Albany, N. Y., convention, 1856, no buildings were owned by Associations; now there are sixty-six worth $2,700,000 and with but one or two exceptions, (Pennsylvania) they are free from debt. Rome, N. Y., Elmira, N. Y., and Watertown, N.Y., have erected buildings costing from five to six thousand dollars during the present year, while Troy, Newbury, Buffalo, N. Y., Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Boston, Mass., are expecting to have completed by the close of the year buildings ranging in cost from $7,000 to $300,000.

New Haven, City of Elms, is beautiful, and the only thought that preverts one from feeling it is a paradise is that Jennie Cramer here became the victim of two young men who will, in all probability, receive their acquittal through the failure of the prosecuting attorneys to properly shape their charge.

Yale College, founded in 1701, was visited by the secretaries at the close of the afternoon session. Over one thousand students attend its various departments.

The result of this Conference must be felt in the quickening of the spiritual life of the delegates, the promotion of Bible study and personal work among young men. ***

Children's Day at Milesburg.

MILESBURG, Pa., June 12, '82.

MR. EDITOR:—Yesterday might be put down as a field day for the Methodist Sunday-school of this place. The day, in accordance with the expressed wish of the church, was given to the children, and everything harmonized to make it an occasion of much interest. The church was beautifully decorated, displaying much taste and skill, and reflecting great credit upon the young ladies and gentlemen who had charge of the floral decorations. The programme, which was successfully carried out, was full of good things and consisted of reading and essays by the children of the school; a ten minute sermon by the pastor, from the text: "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life"—Prov. 4:23; and a short address by Prof. Else. The entire services were enlivened and elevated to the highest pitch of religious enjoyment by music from the school under the direction of our prince of leaders, Lyman T. Eddy. Miss Frankie Eddy presided at the organ with her usual ease and success.

The occasion throughout was a grand success, and the impression will not soon be forgotten by the large audience in attendance. W.

—The last of three hundred gondola cars which the Bellefonte car works are now building, will be completed in about three weeks.

News Nibbles from the Gap.

Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Haag entertained a number of their friends from Bellefonte on Wednesday evening last. The affair was a very pleasant one. Gottlieb was in his usual good spirits and waltzed around among his guests as gay as a bridegroom. John Anderson, the heavy-weight saloon keeper, was present, and of course kept his end up when the fun began.

The flouring mill recently built by Mr. Haag is doing a flourishing business, and justly takes rank as the leading industry at the Gap. The present capacity of the mill is ten barrels of flour and 120 bushels of chop per day.

The crops in this vicinity, although backward as compared with former years, are looking well. Of fruit, cherries will be abundant, apples quite plenty and peaches scarce.

Mr. Haag, the hotel man, desires to dispose of his property here, and live a retired life. He is getting old he says, as well as his wife, and his sons have all left him, two reasons which have induced him to seek a purchaser for his possessions. His hotel is considered a good stand and an "ad." in these columns would no doubt find him a customer.

The Pleasant Gap band is in excellent trim and expects to be kept busy during the summer months and fall campaign.

The probable result of the fall election in this state is a popular subject for discussion with many of our citizens, probably from the fact that a Centre county man heads the Republican ticket. Gen. Beaver is popular hereabouts, and will receive the support of many Democrats. Judge Larimer thinks Gen. Beaver a strong candidate, and we shouldn't wonder if the Judge would vote that way. Benjamin Comly has had an attack of something or other, and thinks he can't go Beaver. It is possible, however, that the General may be elected without Benjamin's vote.

A Decided Expression of Opinion.

Our friends at Howard speak in words that will not be misunderstood regarding the candidacy of General James A. Beaver for Governor. The following emphatic card appeared in the Philadelphia Press of Thursday. It is is of more significant import than a hundred speeches:

SIR: We reside in the centre of five election districts and are pretty well acquainted with all the Republicans in them, and after a diligent inquiry we have not heard of or seen a single Republican but what heartily supports the principles enunciated and the nominations made by the Harrisburg Republican State Convention.

We consider both a fair representation of the popular will and the nominees exceptionably good ones. That is all reasonable persons can ask. So long as our State Conventions continue to give the people as good a platform of principles and as excellent nominees as the late Harrisburg Convention did, we care very little about who "bosses" the conventions or "runs" the party, for we consider the principles adopted and the nominations made at Harrisburg to be the best representation of the popular feeling that a convention has given us for some time time past. None but the Democrats in this section advocate the nominees of the Philadelphia Independent Convention. Truly yours in the faith,

WM. P. LUCAS,	GEORGE LONG,
G. A BECK,	JNO. W. ADAMS,
A. MONTGOMERY,	R. K. WILSON,
A. J. GOODFELLOW,	WILLIAM SMITH,
CURTIS DEHAAS,	H. C. HOLTER,

and forty others.

Howard, Pa., June 5, 1882.

Death of Mrs. Kurtz.

The Watchman, of the 9th, records the following: "We are called upon this week to record the death of Mrs. Joanna Sophia Kurtz, which occurred at Milton, on Saturday night last, at the age of 86. The funeral took place at Aaronsburg, on Tuesday, followed by a sorrowing concourse of relatives and friends.

"The subject of this notice was a very estimable and religious lady in all the relations of life. Her sprightliness and intelligence were remarkable, and in her death the Lutheran church has lost a devoted member and the community a friend whom to know was to honor and respect.

"Mrs. Kurtz was the widow of Ludwig Kurtz, formerly editor and proprietor of the Centre Berichter, now called the Millheim Journal. Her husband lived to a good old age, and left behind him the record of a virtuous life."

—There is more truth than poetry in the following from an exchange: "Ask some men for an advertisement and they will answer that they don't believe in advertising—a paper is never read. Let a man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up the side of a barn some dark night and his tone changes immediately, and if a printing office is in a garret of a seventeen story building he will climb to the top to beg the editor to keep quiet—don't publish it in the paper."

Personal and Particular.

Rev. R. Crittenden was in Lock Haven last Friday.

General James A. Beaver returned home Friday morning.

Mr. Page, formerly a clerk in Meese's store, is now serving in the same capacity at Sechler's store.

Mr. Hoover, of Adams' Express Company, this place, was so unfortunate, Thursday, as to have one of his feet injured by a circular saw falling on it.

Mr. William F. Irvin, of Clearfield, father of Mr. James Irvin, of this place, is in town visiting his son. He is expected to remain several weeks.

Mr. W. H. B. Eisenhuth, formerly a resident of Millheim and a well known and energetic young man, recently departed for the West, where he will make his future home.

R. A. Magee, Esq., has been absent from town on a business mission in the Bradford oil regions during the past three weeks. The unexpected success met with delays his return.

Mr. Walter Bayard left on Monday afternoon to Altoona to represent the Bellefonte druggists at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association, which convened in that city on Tuesday.

Mr. Charles Wolf and family, of Brush Valley, departed Wednesday to make their future home in Freeport, Illinois. While in town they were the guests of Mr. William Jamison, Mrs. J. being a near relative.

Miss Libbus Humes, of Houtzville, is visiting at the residence of her father near this place. We talicize the ville as it is desirable to distinguish it from Houtz*dale* while the small-pox is so prevalent at the latter place.

Mr. George P. Rishel is home from the Pennsylvania Medical University of which he has been a student during the past year. Before another welve months shall pass away he expects to be a full-fledged doctor of medicine.

Mr. Jacob E. Snyder, of Eagleville, was among the callers at this office on Friday. He considers it the duty of every Republican in Centre county who desires the best good of the party to which he belongs to subscribe for the REPUBLICAN.

Paul C. Hull, the gentlemanly agent of Hart, Hitchcock & Co., manufacturers of agricultural implements in Peoria, Illinois, has been sojourning in Bellefonte during the past few days in the interest of the house he represents. He departed Friday morning well satisfied with his visit.

Dr. Shortlidge, wife and child of Wilmington, Del., arrived in town Tuesday. The Doctor is a brother of our esteemed fellow-citizen, Colonel William Shortlidge, and will spend some time visiting him. He is in somewhat delicate health and hopes that the pure, invigorating atmosphere of Centre county will improve his physical condition.

Rev. E. B. Morris, the youthful and talented pastor formerly in charge of the Baptist churches of this place and Milesburg, has received seven calls from different congregations since departing from this place, among them one from the Baptist church in Huntingdon, Pa. He has about concluded to accept a call to the pastorate of a Baptist church at Waverly, a small town near Baltimore, Md.

Mr. R. D. Gauby, superintendent of the Bellefonte Car Works, severed his connection with that establishment on Saturday, and departed for Milton, where he will take charge of a prosperous feed and provision store. Mr. Gauby has filled the position of superintendent with great credit to himself and to the satisfaction of his employers. He desired to withdraw from the car works several weeks ago, and was persuaded to remain at the earnest solicitation of Mr. Tiffin, the manager. He is held in high esteem by all persons connected with the establishment and departs with their best wishes for his future welfare.

—The mercantile establishment of Mr. Isaac Guggenheimer, one of our prominent business men, was closed on Friday by the sheriff. The amount of Mr. Guggenheimer's liabilities aggregate $14,000. He has always conducted his business in a manner satisfactory to the general public and we hope he may soon see his way out of his difficulties. The closing of his store did not occasion any surprise as it has long been whispered in business circles that financial troubles were pending.

—About seventy ladies and fifteen or twenty gentlemen assembled at the residence of J. B. Linn, Esq., on Friday evening to participate in the exercises of the Ladies' Mite Society. Financially the meeting was quite successful as the amount collected reached $10.44.

Wedding at Altoona.

A wedding occurred at Altoona which is interesting to residents of Centre county from the fact that the ady connected with the happy affair was a resident of Boalsburg. The Tribune of Saturday records it as follows:

Mr. John Davis is the telegraph repairman in the employ of the Western Union telegraph company in this city, and has been for about eight months past. Before he came here he claimed Havre de Grace, Maryland, as a place of habitation. On Thursday he was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Maggie Rockey, of Boalsburg, Centre county, by Rev. Jesse Bowman Young, pastor of the Eighth avenue Methodist church, the ceremony being performed at Rev. Young's residence.

Mr. Davis is an excellent young man and is held in high esteem by Mr. Robert Fry, in whose department he is employed. and by all telegraphers in the city. On account of the press of work Mr. Davis performed his ordinary telegraphic duties yesterday as if nothing had happened to disturb his serenity, but he will have his jollification in due time.

—An exchange says: We often see farmers transplanting cabbage, tomato and other vegetable plants during or immediately after a rain. We deem this a radical error, and our own practice is directly the reverse. We much prefer to transplant when the ground is warm and mellow, and very seldom fail to have the plants grow. A good plan is to dip the roots of the plants in a thin mud, made of rich soil, and if any water at all is used let it be put in the hole, under the plant, and the roots covered with dry soil. This neither bakes nor shrinks sand cracks in drying, exposing the roots to the air, as when wet, either by rain or pouring water around the roots after planting, as is often done.

—The depredations of the potato beetle seem to be growing more extensive every year. Various expedients are resorted to by farmers to exterminate it. The following has the advantage of novelty although it must be adopted before the potatoes begin to grow: Take a number of boards and place them here and there among the potatoes, placing slices of raw potatoes dipped in Paris green on the boards. The pieces of potato will soon be covered with bugs which will of course die. As the spring bug breeds most numerously, this is the quickest and most efficacious way of exterminating them.

—Some parties living at Blanchard, this county, are in possession of a little dog which for sagacity excels any canine we have ever heard of. It can dance in a truly artistic manner, going through the various evolutions in a manner to arouse the envy of the most graceful belle or beau of the period. It can also assume a very serious aspect, and holding a newspaper in its fore-paws, pretend to peruse the most stirring political editorial now in print. There are also several other equally wonderful performances which it can execute in an astonishingly natural manner.

—Jews-harp music is becoming fashionable in Bellefonte. It renders the lovely air, "Bridget Donahoe," a thousand times more attractive than upon an ordinary instrument.
